FRIENDS

If ever you need to talk,
to share a laugh,
a dream,
a smile....
to be comforted or reassured,
to be understood.

Remember, my shoulder is always there for your head, your secrets are safe,
and my door is always open.

I will support you in all that you do.
I will help you in all that you need.
I will share with you all that you experience.

I will encourage you in all that is in your heart.
I will love you in all that you are.

You're my best friend.

CHEERLEADERS

Head Over Heels!

"We Point Our Toes!"

"We jump. We shout. We do cartwheels. We point our toes. We are family! ", says Yolanda Merced, captain of the squad.

Lane cheerleaders are not a typical group of cheerleaders. There's a closeness in the group, and that closeness is responsible for the bright smiles you see. The cheerleaders work as a team to lift school spirit.

Not only do the cheerleaders boost the morale of Lane's athletes, they also cheer on the senior citizens in the community. They brighten Lane when Open School Nights are held; they served as sparkling representatives of Lane for the Woodhaven Street Fair. Between practices, held two or three times a week, the cheerleaders are involved in other community activites, such as the Bowl-A-Thon.

Cheerleaders must pass all classes to stay on the squad. Some cheerleaders are in Arista. "We're not dumb; stereotypes given to us are unfair." says one team member.

All of the cheerleaders are unanimous about their favorite part of being a cheerleader: celebrating at the victory party after the winning game.

Yes, We really do point our toes

Student Council

Perfect Planners

Who really runs the school? Mr. Damesek, the Deans, Mr. Margolis??? Well, it's actually run by the students. The student council is what really keeps the school running. It's made up of thirteen members.

The function of the student council is to prepare the school budget, which includes getting money for school teams and clubs, and sponsoring the dances, blood drives, talent shows, walkathons, and much more. Roxanne Flores, a senior rep., said, "Being on the student council makes me feel good because I'm doing something important." Mr. H. Heumann feels, "This year's student gov't is very together and working to make this year better than any other year before."

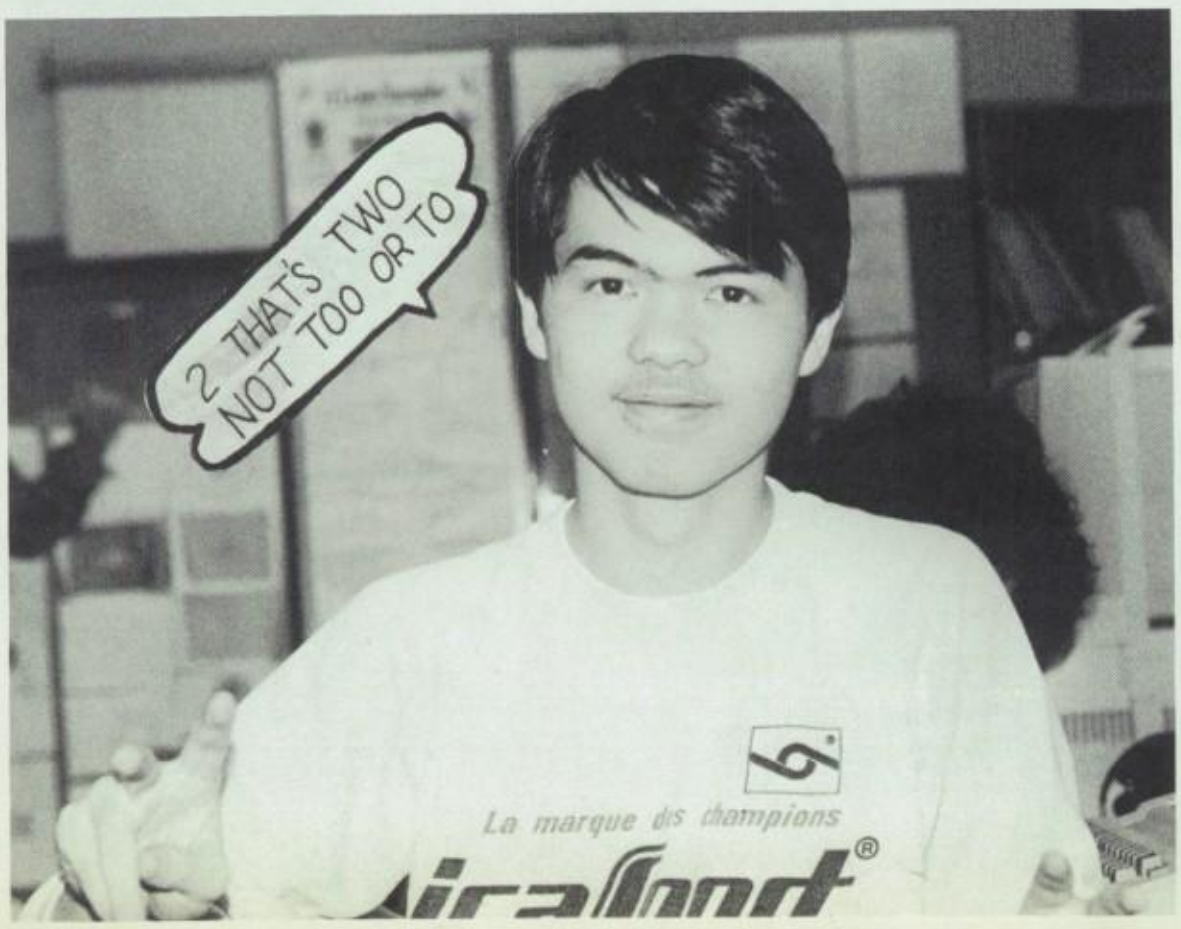
Thanks for a great year from all of us and the future graduates who have enjoyed your hard work and dedication.

Academic Olympic Team

It's Greek to Me.

"Academic Olympic Team, isn't that the nerd team?" That's what everyone says to you when you tell them that you're a member! Actually, the team is made up of seniors and juniors, who have a good deal of knowledge in different subjects, either English, Social Studies, Math, Science, or Omnibus. Ms. B. Raggi is the coach and she is looking forward to winning this year, as they did last year, when they were the Division Champions of Queens. You might also be surprised to know that none of the members are "brainiacs"! As a matter of fact, some of them are your friends who enjoy going out and having fun! So, why are they members? Well, because they enjoy competing against other New York City high schools. They know they can beat the other high schools, who think that Lane is an easy school to beat.

It's not easy to compete. You have to be prepared to answer any question you may be asked, but the members of the Academic Olympic Team are ready! So on behalf of the team, N.Y.C. high schools beware of "The Revenge of the Nerds" from F.K. Lane.



HOT AND HAPPENING!

Senior Fashion Friday
September 26, 1986

Did you ever really like a style? You go out, buy $200 worth of clothes, and within a month you are considered out of date if you wear them. Well... welcome to the 20th century!!Fashion is changing all the time. It is not even the clothing we are worried about. It is all the accessories. Did you ever see those giant loop earrings? Well, all the girls are wearing them. Even the people who still wear polyester have them.

Esprit, Guess, Benneton, New Balance high tops, Swatches, plus all the little things like silver watches, suspenders, heavy oversized socks are in, and probably will be all year!!

I mean who can afford them?? By the time we all save our money to buy a Guess shirt and Guess jeans, they'll be out of style already!!

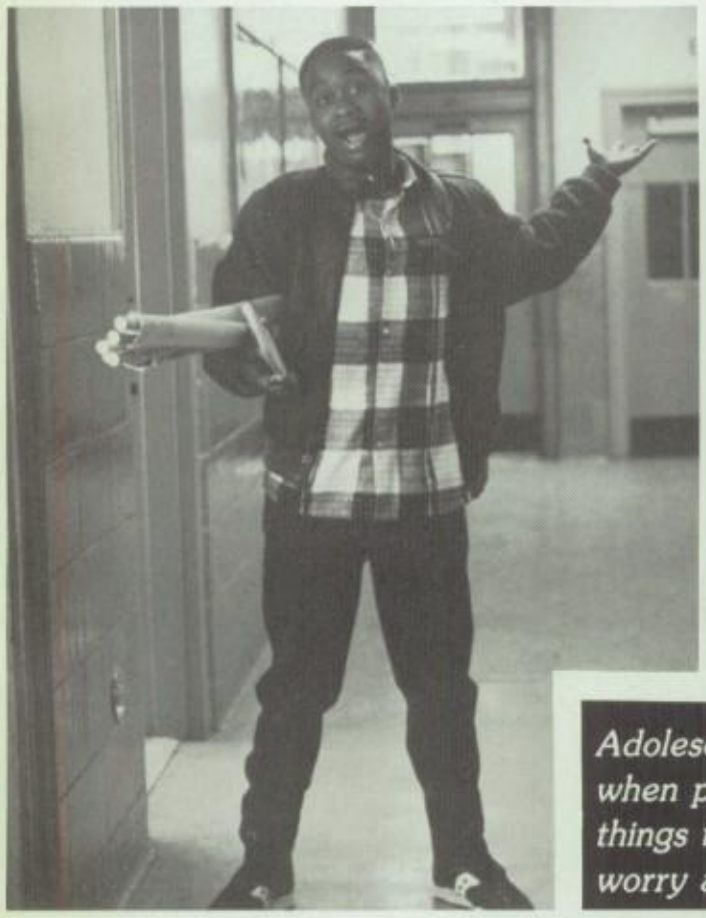
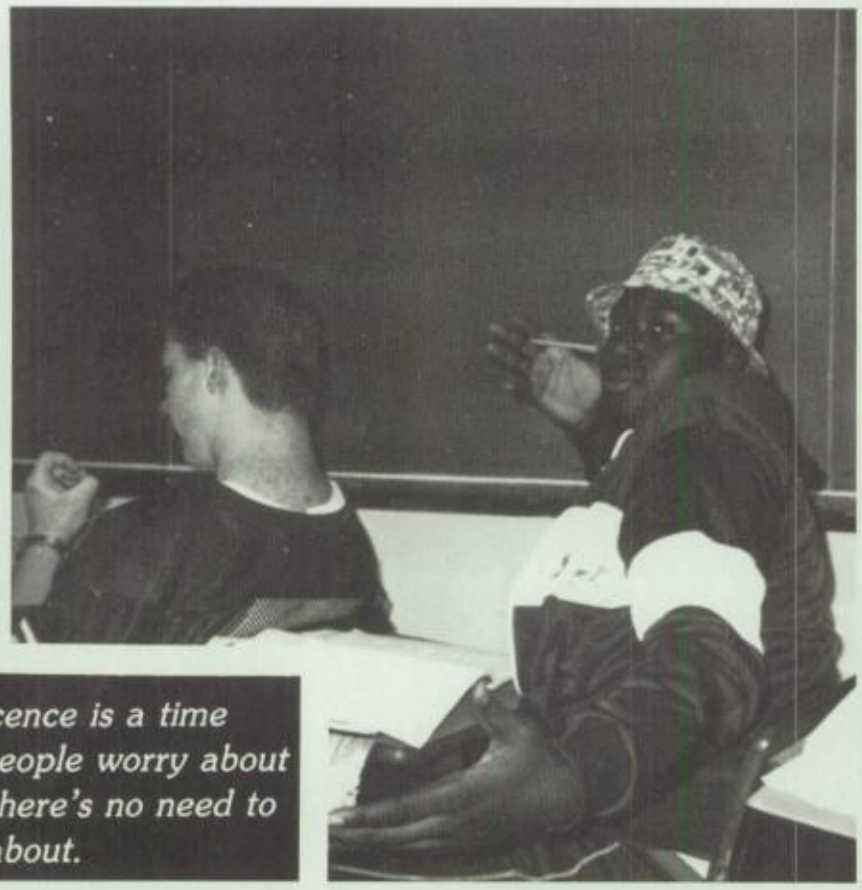
Student Life

"I don't have a lifestyle. I have a life." California Suite



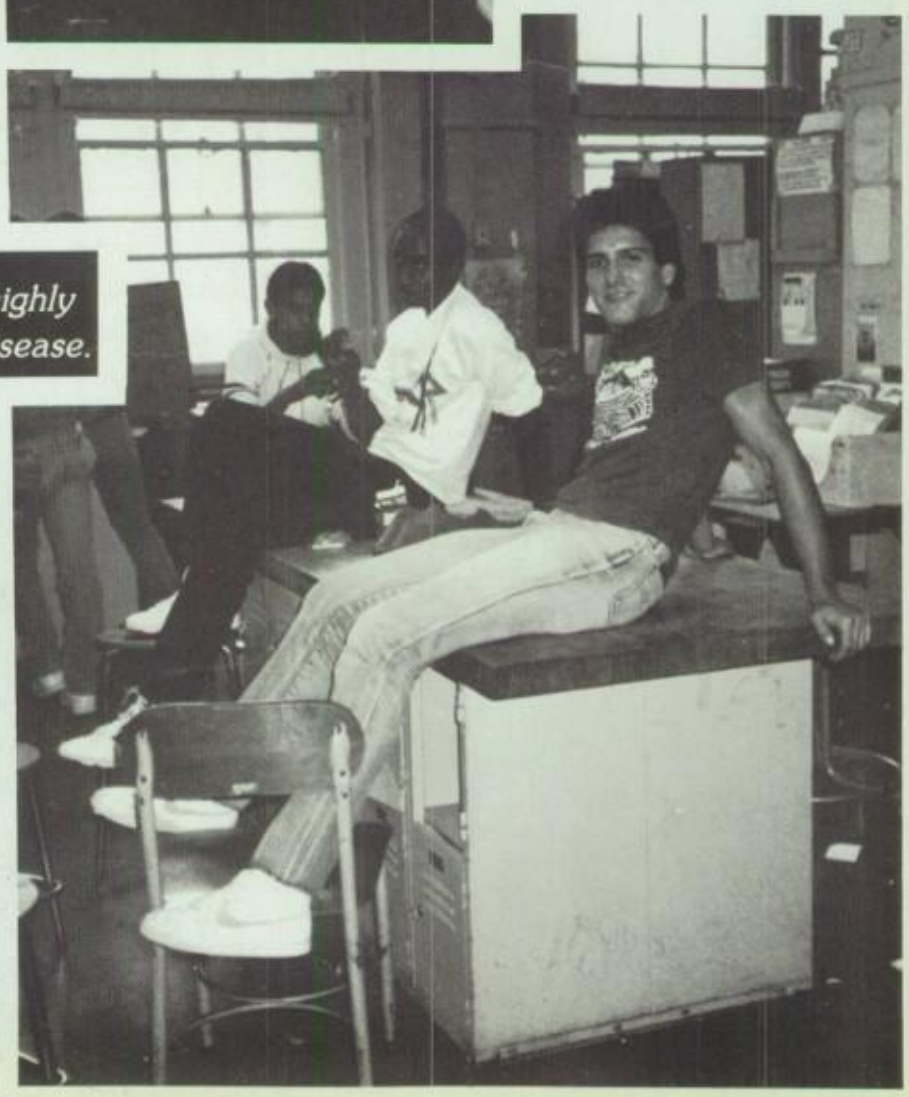


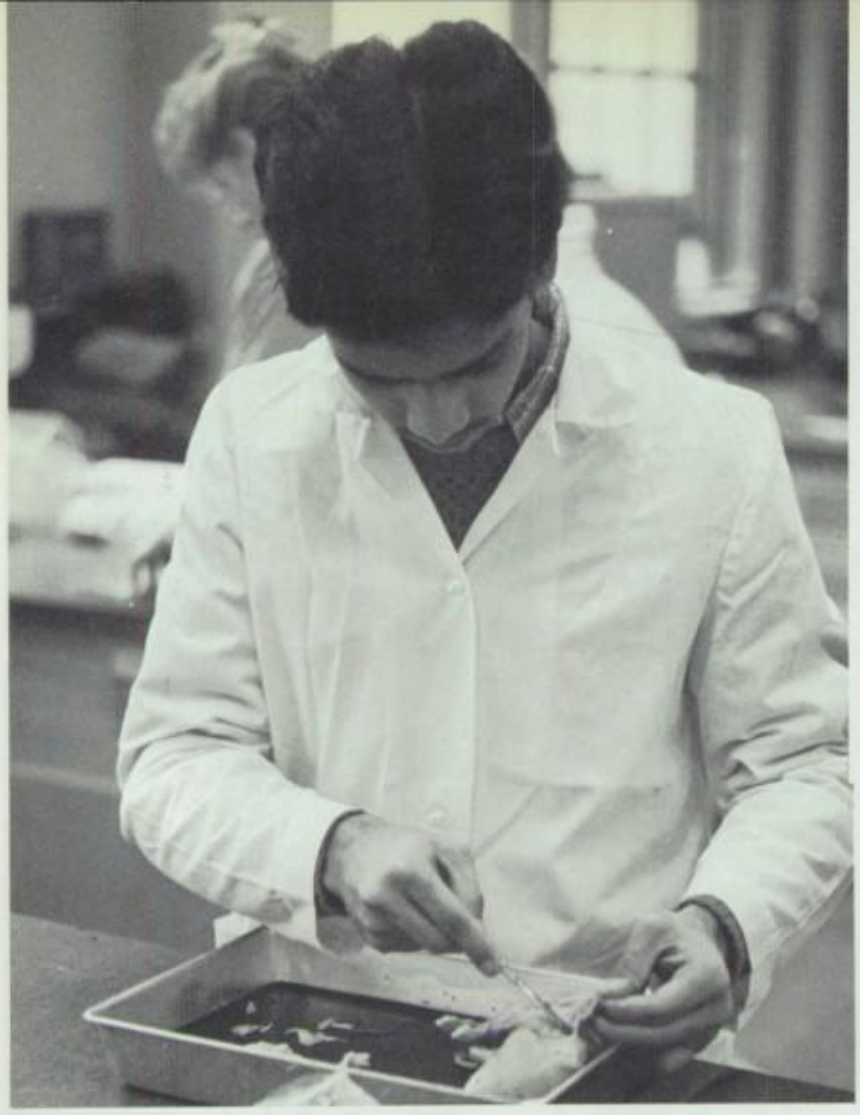
Adolescence is a time when people worry about things there's no need to worry about.

It should take you exactly four seconds to get from here to that door. I'll give you two.

For the first time in my life, I've tasted life.

Failure is a highly contagious disease.



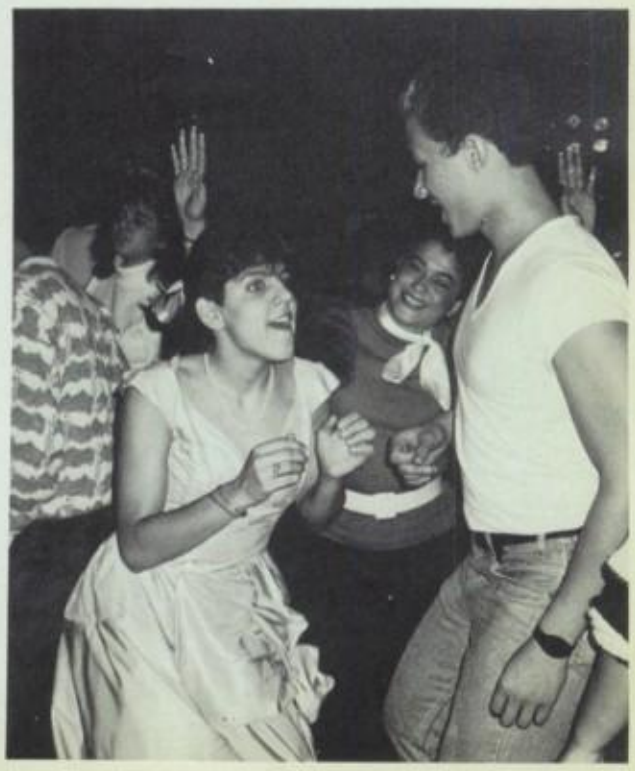


CRAZY! We dislike the use of the word CRAZY. All people who behave strangely are not insane.

Goals-The aim of life is self development, to realize one's nature perfectly. That's what we're here for.

Love is like the measles. You only get it once. The older you are, the tougher it goes.

Oh, I can tell a lot about a man by dancing with him. You know some boys, well... When they take a girl in their arms to dance, they, well, they make her feel sort of uncomfortable. But with you, I, I had the feeling you knew exactly what you were doing, and I could follow you every step of the way.



...it's off to work we go

Don't ever work in a bakery! You'll get FAT!

Diana Moneta laughingly described the sweet terrors of working at the Savorita Bakery on Jamaica Avenue in Woodhaven. Willpower has caused Diana to become immune to the delicious apple turnovers, her favorite pastry.

Diana enjoys the job she has held for the past six months. She usually works from 2 P.M.-7 P.M. four days a week. Diana enjoys the challenge of going to high school and at the same time, working five hours a day.

Diana was trained by Jennifer Guglielmo, who is featured on the next page. Diana, now thanks to Jennifer, knows all the prices of bread, and puts together tantalizing window displays of baked goods.

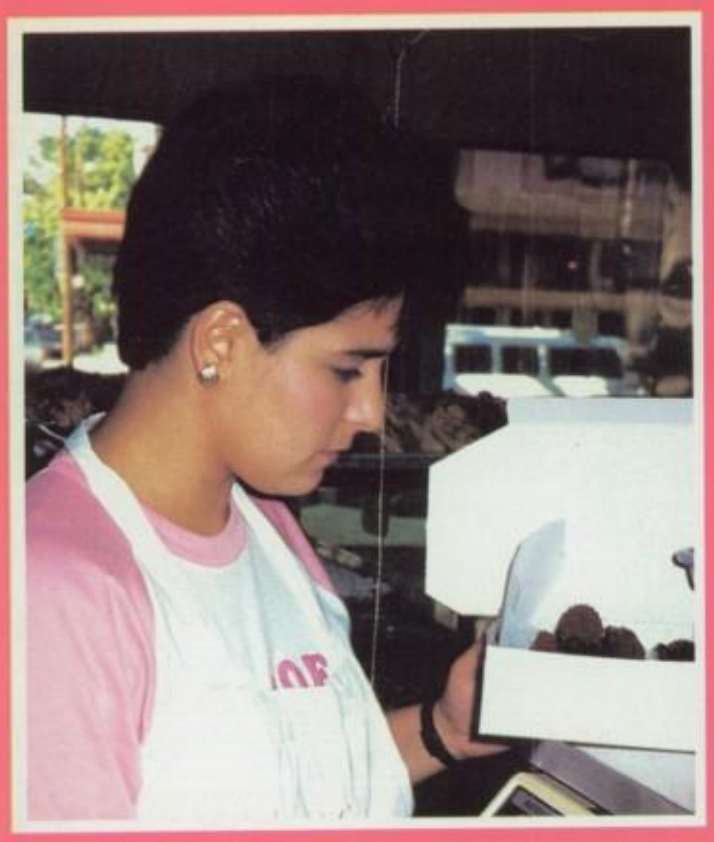
Diana and Jennifer have become closer friends since they work at the bakery. The bakery is hazardous, not to Jennifer and Diana, but to potential customers. Beware of the confectionary sugar fights that take place when they think no one is watching.

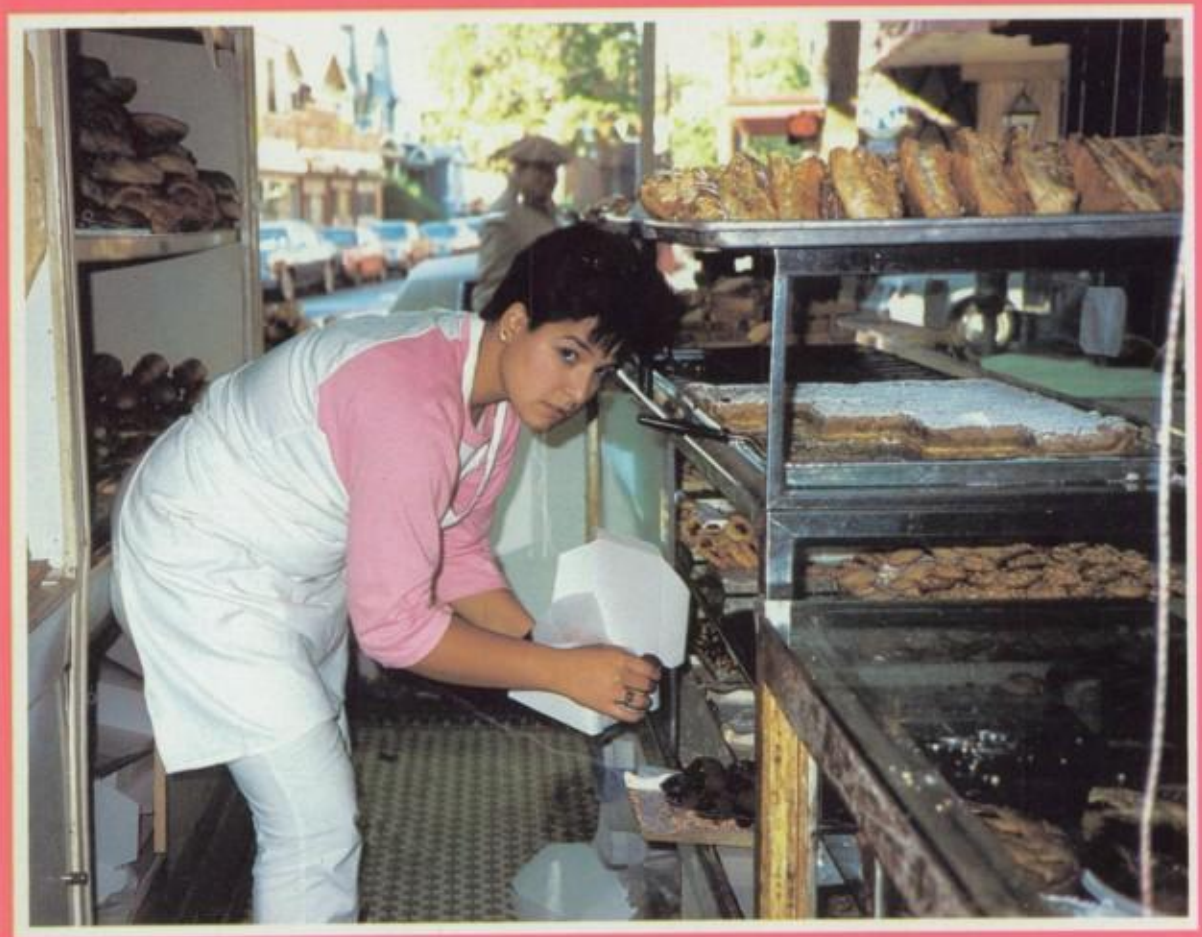
Karla cares... send the very best

Everyday, Karla Platarote walks into Stoke's Card Store in Maspeth to work at a very unpredictable job. Karla does a variety of jobs around the store, from handling the cash register, and taking inventory to wrapping gifts and displaying stuffed animals.

The unpredictable part of Karla's job is the customers. Karla considers the different customers that walk in to be the interesting part of her job. Karla is fluent in Spanish and that really helps Spanish speaking customers get their shopping done.

Karla has had a great deal of experience in the job market. Her previous jobs include working as a deligirl, waitress, and lifeguard. There are advantages to working in Stoke's. Karla has her choice of any candy or chocolate at the counter!!Mmmmmmmm!!



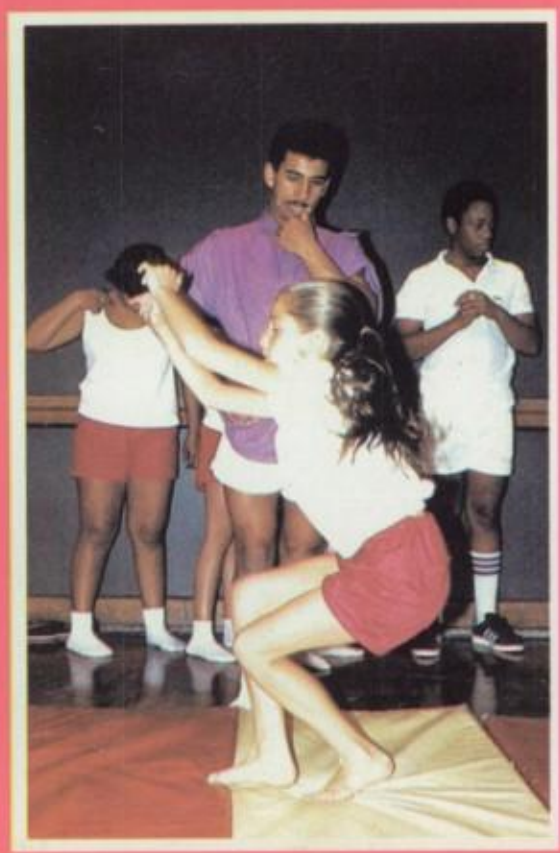


Saturday is a busy day for Jennifer Guglielmo. She works at the bakery from 6:45 A.M. until 1 P.M. After her job, she gets to the football games at Lane by the second half to cheer the team on. But Jennifer doesn't resent her job and the demands it makes on her time. She just wouldn't give it up.

Jennifer has worked at the bakery for two and a half years. She usually trains the new employees. Jennifer has learned how to put display cookie trays together and at the same time she learned patience. Patience is essential for Jennifer to deal with the many seedy customers that come into the bakery.

As a result, Jennifer knows how businesses work, how bread is made, and how to handle money. Says Jennifer, "I'm glad this was my first job. It's been a learning experience!"

I think it's time to check out Jennifer's buns, umm, I mean the bakery's buns. Stop in and say hello and buy some of their delicious baked goods.



"It feels good to know the kids are learning."

Every Tuesday, when the hour hand approaches 4 o'clock, something special begins to happen. Jose Almanzar dazzles his coed gymnastics class of 9-13 year olds as he begins to demonstrate floor exercises. Jose also teaches his students the parallel bars and even modern dancing.

Jose is a volunteer with the Youth Club, sponsored by St. John Newmann's School, a Catholic school located in East New York. Jose has been with the program for two years, and has loved every minute of it. Besides gymnastics, Jose has also taught some art classes.

Jose recommends students for further instruction if he thinks they have potential. He says,"I had the opportunity to go on to further training for the Olympics when I was 11 years old."

Boosters

Let's hear it for the Boosters!

Lane's Boosters are just as much a part of school spirit as the Cheerleaders. I asked Janine Feis what was so different. "It's basically the same as being a Cheerleader except we don't do acrobatics."

The Boosters, headed by faculty member Janice Jones, practice every Wednesday and Friday afternoon doing stunts such as pyramids which they perform at halftime during games. The only difference is the uniforms. The Cheerleaders have mixed pompoms and the Boosters have solid color pompoms. Did you know that? Just like the Cheerleaders, the Boosters are involved in many social activities like performing for the senior citizens and, they will participate in the annual Woodhaven Christmas parade. Whenever you need a cheer you can count on the Boosters, and in return receive a radiant show filled with razzamatazz.

Girl's Chorus

Sirens of Lane

The girl's chorus performs splendidly at several assemblies during the year and at graduation. Their strength is in their love of singing. This common bond keeps them working as individuals within the group. Christine Gershonowitz who has been in the chorus for a year loves it. This year to everyone's surprise there are 3 boys in the girl's chorus class. With boys Christine Gershonowitz says, "It sounds good and, different from an all girl's chorus."

Colorguard

Stars & Stripes Forever!

The Colorguard headed by Mr. Heumann consists of four to five students who during assembly programs such as Arista Installation and Graduation carry the National, City and Board of Education flags for the pledge of allegiance. There are no major academic requirements for Colorguards. They are required to wear red, white and blue to these functions. The biggest function for the Colorguards is Senior Graduation. At this assembly, the senior color guards turn their flags over to the next graduating class representatives.

Colorguard: Mr.H Heumann, B.Colbert, M. Diljohn

Model Congress

No glue or plastic parts here.

Model Congress is a learning experience. Students who join learn about parliamentary procedures, bills and laws, and are guided by Mr. Buchman, the adviser. On a larger scale, it's an interschool competition where students from schools all over the New York Metropolitan area go to a host school for the weekend and participate in a Model Congress. This involves five hundred students that represent one hundred to two hundred High Schools in the Metro Area. The students stay in other people's homes and get to meet elected officials who are annually located in Washington or Albany and spend their time trying to get bills passed.

All students must have good grades and good attendance to be in Model Congress. "We're looking for people who are anxious to meet new people, learn about legislative procedures and have a good time learning while doing this," said Mr. Buchman.

Close-Up

Take an up close look!

A program headed by Mr. Heumann takes a "Close-Up" look at our Government in progress. Students go to Washington DC for one week. They are kept busy attending seminars throughout the day. Every night the students attend the seminars and discuss what they learned that day.

This year's trip will cost about $615.00 and 50 students will go. In the past, as many as 55 have gone on the trip.

Students must be nominated by a teacher, have a good school and attendance record and get an ok from the dean's office and their guidance counselor.

Those that are going on the trip fund raise by selling cookies and getting donations from local assemblymen and merchants.

The Close-Up trip is not only educational; it's a lot of fun!

REQUIRED SUBJECTS

What's the difference?

Electives, Physical Education, Regular Subjects.

What is the difference? It's very simple: a regular subject is one that you are required to take throughout your four years of high school. These classes you do not get to choose, they are chosen for you. The classes include Social Studies, Math, English, and Science. If you do not pass the required classes and do not get enough credits....Well, don't say goodbye to Lane too soon because you'll be here again next year looking at another yearbook.

Bio Lab Squad

Bio Lab Squad to the rescue!!

"It's fun and interesting, you see things you never knew existed." Darlene Torres-Squad member.

Ten Laneites discovered a new, exciting world when they joined the Bio Lab Squad. What you ask is so interesting about the Bio Lab? Well, it houses unusual specimens, such as a 4 month old male fetus. If the baby had been born, it would be 40 years old now. The Bio Lab is another one of Lane's unique programs.

The lab is the heart of Lane's Science Department. Brian Nadel, a lab specialist who has temporarily replaced Stan Kaufman, feels it's a good way for students to go behind the scenes in a laboratory."

The Squad delivers equipment to science teachers. Whatever teachers need, whether it be charts, models, test tubes, microscopes, or even goldfish, the lab supplies. The Squad also prepares demonstrations for teachers and insures the success of experiments used to teach lessons.

Friendships among squad members make the lab even more rewarding. Students gain teachers and other Laneites as friends. Karla Paz, a junior, finds the program beneficial-she has learned how to use scientific equipment, and its even helped her in science classes.

Vivian Paz, Karla's older sister, has been with the squad for two years. Vivian, a senior, feels her experience in the lab has steered her toward a career in Forensic Science. "You can never lose out working in the lab, you learn about teaching methods, chemicals, acids, and equipment. It really makes you think."

Brian Nadel says, "The Bio Lab enables teachers to teach better. The students in the lab are even exposed to comparative physiology. I've been very happy working in Lane's active Science Department."

Take your pick of Legal Careers.

Wanted: responsible, mature, ambitious, self-motivated students with teacher references. Objectives: real life work experience in legal professions to prepare students for legal careers. Travel a must: work in NY State Attorney's Office, NYC Police Headquarters and local police precincts. Thinking about becoming a lawyer: THIS IS THE PROGRAM FOR YOU.

Peer Tutoring

Lending a helping hand.

Carolyn Mohan has been a peer tutor since her sophomore year. This year she is the master tutor of the program headed by Mr. Santaga.

Peer tutoring is a program where students are tutored in reading, writing, and math. They are tutored to prepare them to pass the RCT's.

There are 11 paid tutors in the program who work Monday to Thursday 1:30-3:30 P.M. helping other students.

All the tutors must have a high reading and math level, be recommended by a teacher and then interviewed and hired.

I asked Carolyn what she liked most about the program, "It's not the money, sure it's great to be paid, but I just like the feeling that I'mhelping other people."

Lane Reporter

Not The New York Post

The Lane Reporter is a big part of Lane's past, present, and future. In order to be on the staff, no academic requirements are needed, only the desire to write. News, feature stories, sports and current events are listed. The students write what they are interested in. Their stories are handed in, proofread and then they get them back and type them up. The Lane Reporter, received in homerooms monthly, takes about four weeks to finish, from beginning assignment of stories to distribution. Students recommended by teachers are placed on the staff according to their potential. Mr. Kwitkin, the adviser, was asked how he feels about the Lane Reporter. He says, "I love doing it!Our goal is to get as many people as possible involved."

Gym Leaders

Student Teachers

A special group of Laneites makes up the Gym Leaders. The girls in the group assist gym teachers in physical education classes. They take attendance, set up equipment, referee games, and help out in the locker room. Ms. Kraus, who is also the senior adviser, is in charge of the group.

In order to become a Gym Leader a student must take a Leaders In Training course. The girls learn how to play every sport from basketball to fencing. Leaders must have the ability to get along with others.

The Forum

Franklin K. Lane Radicals????

The Forum is one of many unique extracurricular activities at Lane. The purpose of the group is to bring controversial issues to light and to think out these issues.

The Forum, in existence since last February, participated in the June 14, 1986 demonstration against apartheid at the United Nations. The group has also hosted two speakers at Lane. One speaker was from South Africa. Another speaker, from St. John's University, spoke about his experiences in Nicaragua.

This term, Forum members are selling Unicef cards as a fundraiser for South African refugee teenagers. The money will buy books for the African National Congress High School.

T.O.P.

Getting to the "TOP" of the Business World

T.O.P. (Training Opportunities Program) is a program that enables students who are interested in a specific field to work in it, or with people involved in that field. There are thirty-five students involved in the program who each work fifteen hours a week after school and on weekends in their chosen field. As an example, if you want to be a nurse, you would get a job as a nurse's aide.

In order to get into the program, students must have a good academic record, two recommendations by teachers, and be at least sixteen years of age. Mrs. E. Blumenstein, who has been the program's adviser since 1984 said, "I like working with students to help them get into the business world without any problems."

Library Staff

"Answers to all your tests found here."

Our library, which people take for granted, is really a valuable resource to all students and teachers. During the past year, it has received a new paint job and a "law library" in one alcove. The library participates in an Intershare program. This program enables the library to get a book for a student from another source if the student cannot find the book in their own library. The library also has many dictionaries, encyclopedias, and great research materials. Why travel all over to get research for a term paper when you can just walk up to the third floor and have a whole roomful of knowledge at your fingertips? If you've gotten this far, then the Sam Levenson Memorial Library is the place you've spent your share of time bothering Mrs. S. Walker, the librarian and, doing your work.

Stamp Club

Can't lick 'em? Join 'em!

The Stamp Club, which meets every week, is one of the many ways to meet people and have fun at Lane. The members of the club meet to compare and trade stamps. Students in the club learn a great deal about foreign countries and even come across a few valuable stamps. They also gain knowledge of postal systems in other countries.

Says Ricki Baldeo, "My grandfather's stamp collection really got me interested in stamp collecting. When I joined the club at Lane, I gained a new hobby and many new friends."

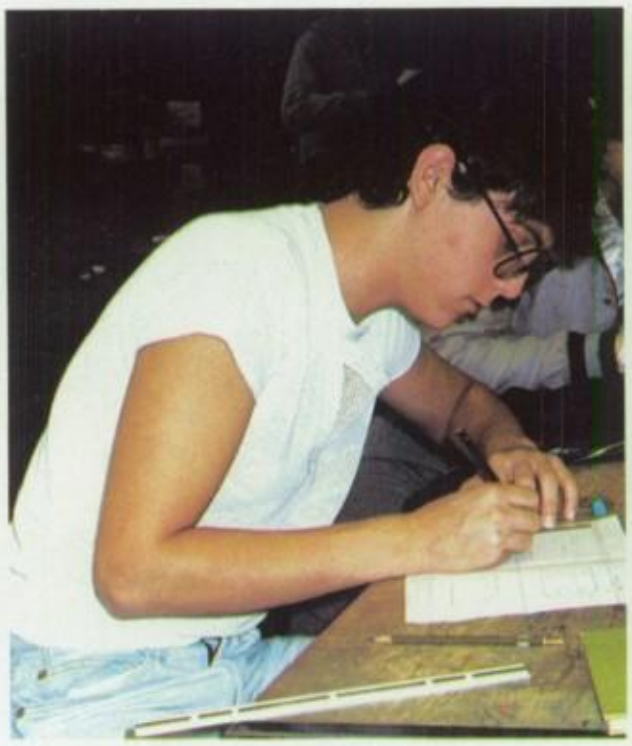
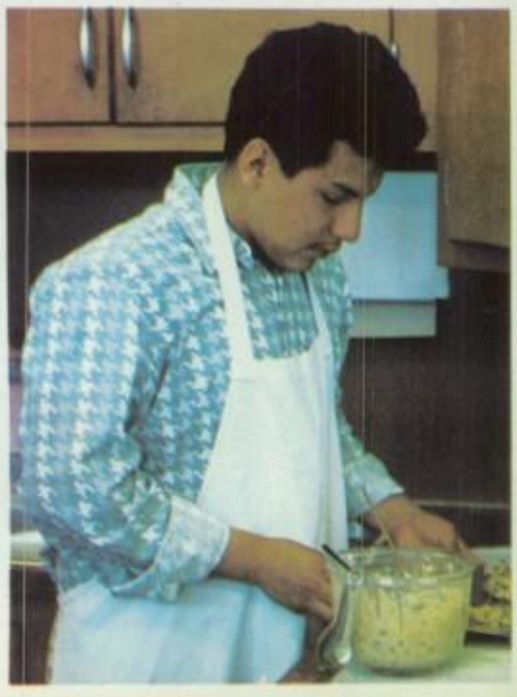
Elective Classes

Baking to Upholstery-Take Your Pick!

Elective classes, exactly what are they? If you have an interest in rocks, you could take mineralogy; if you like the sight of blood, you can take Avanced Placement Biology. But don't forget to team up with someone you don't like because you have to stick needles into their fingers!

Elective classes are different from required classes in that students choose to take them, unlike Social Studies, Math, English and Gym which are required for Graduation. The elective classes put more joy and student responsibility into learning. Printing, calligraphy, photography, cartooning and a number of performing arts such as piano, guitar, chorus and drama are just part of a long list of great elective courses. Oh yeah, Yearbook production is also an elective.





Mock Trial

Best Defense

Mock Trial is a learning experience for students who are interested in legal careers. The program headed by Mrs. Kirchgaessner consists of 15 students. The students have been selected on their ability to isolate issues and argue effectively. They also represent the school in the citywide mock trial competition. The students learn about the careers in the law system. They argue in Federal Court against other teams from other schools in the city. The teams are made up of 3 attorneys and 3 witnesses for the prosecution and, 1 plaintiff, 3 witnesses and 3 attorneys for the defense. The school that wins goes to Albany to compete in a State-Wide competition. The winner will compete in Washington D.C. in the national competition. The students consider Mock Trial challenging, educational and fun.

Mixed Chorus

Music To Our Ears

Ms. C. Kreuter has been in charge of the mixed chorus for eight years. There are thirty students in the chorus. Our mixed chorus has been around for the past 50 years and will probably still be here when we come back to celebrate our 50th year reunion. There are no academic requirements to be in the mixed chorus. It is an elective class. During the semester, the class will perform at the Bernard Feinson Developmental Center and other places as they have in the past. I asked Ms. Kreuter what she thought the best thing about mixed chorus was and she said, "It gives people a chance to be part of a group, and yet, perform as an individual."

Emergency Room

Band-Aids and T.L.C.

John A. Student is in auto shop class when his hand slips and he cuts his finger. He gets the pass and heads for the Emergency Room where Nellie Brower administers peroxide and a Band-Aid. Nellie Brower, has worked in the Emergency room as a health aide for the past 5 years. The Emergency Room is where students go when they are hurt. They call their parents to come and pick them up. They may not leave the building alone. Students who work in the E.R. receive service credit, and an extra dose of T.L.C.

Law Club

Guilty Or Not?

The Law Club is an afterschool program open to any student interested in a career of the law-related professions. The club also publishes a quarterly journal entitled "Lane Just-Us." There are 40 students in the Club and many more keep signing up. The Law Club sponsors the Teen Crime Prevention and Safety Program. It plans to organize activities such as trips, contests and films. On November 7, 1986 our Courtroom was dedicated to Dr. Isidore Starr who was a graduate of Lane (see pg.60 "Echoes:Classics From The Past"). Mrs. Kirchgaessner, who has been the adviser for 6 years, said "Working with the students in the Law Club is one of the most rewarding aspects of my job."

Photography Club

Point And Shoot!

Mr. Santaga and his band of aspiring photographers spend their time pointing and shooting- meetings you ask, none!Jobs you wonder-none! A rather negative outlook, don't you think? NO! Mr. Santaga believes the photographers should shoot freely and then evaluate all the photographs for constructive criticism to improve their skills. All members get free film, free processing and free criticisms. All this eventually adds up to a club full of good photographers- SMILE!

Program Office

Pressure, Pressure

The Program Office is the "central nervous system" of Lane . They are responsible for making up the programs for students and are also responsible for making changes in programs and basically anything that pertains to the student's program. Students work in the Office every period. In order to work there you must be in grades 10-12 and get an approval from Mr. Calastro or Ms. Maher. Mr. Calastro, who has worked in the Office for the past 9 years, said "We're a computerized school; we help keep things running smoothly." Sounds easy but it's not!!

Jazz Band

Name that Tune

This year's Jazz Band, headed once again by Mr. Rod is in full swing. David Weinberger who plays alto saxaphone in the band is just one of the thirty-five people who put their time and effort into making the Jazz Band bigger and better than ever before. The band plays two yearly concerts and will play at the Bernard Feinson Developmental Center later on in the year. The Jazz Band is an old tradition that shows the true spirit of Franklin K. Lane: the spirit that's kept Lane alive and kickin' for fifty years!

Spark

Just Say No!

Spark, headed by Ms. Smith, stands for School Prevention of Addiction through Rehabilatation and Knowledge. This is an alternative counseling program dealing with students' problems: that way they will not turn to drugs as a solution. Spark also helps students find jobs and choose colleges. This year Spark is thinking about forming a S.A.D.D. group (Students Against Drunk Drivers). Anyone can go to Spark any day or anytime you have a free class or lunch.

Senior Government

Seriously Studying Seniors

Only the Senior Government led by Ms. J. Kraus can create a super senior year. The many activities including trips, dances, The Prom and Graduation are all planned by your elected Student Government: Sheryl Heitner (Vice President), Esat Alijaj (President). Lena Santos (Secretary), Marlane Militano (Secretary), Ms. Kraus (Senior Adviser), Kathy Baierlein (Treasurer), Lisbet Vargas (Treasurer). Ms. Kraus has various committees to coordinate the gargantuan task of planning a fun filled year. Sheryl Heitner said, "The entire Senior year depends on how well we work together for the Senior class. Our goal is a happy senior class and fun filled year." P.S. Editor's note: So far so good. Thanks Senior Government.

Arista

Academic or Social?

Many people think that Arista is a boring group in which the main topic of conversation is, "I received a 99% on my Trigonometry exam, how did you do?" For your information, Arista is much more. During the school year, Arista sponsors many activities for its members including a weekend trip, which is a BLAST! To be in Arista, you must: have an 80 average (85 for the National Honor Society), no dean's record, and do service in school or the community. Arista has monthly meetings which you are required to attend. At these meetings, the students decide on activities for the group. The student leaders of Arista, advised by Mrs. Weinstock are Christina Virgona - President, Tracy Sinusas - Vice President, Anthony Maffea - Treasurer, and Minawatee Diljohn - Secretary. These leaders insure that Arista is not only an academic club, but a club that doesn't leave out the Fun!!!

Senior Council

A Four Star Rating

Around 8th period, once or twice a week, the voice of Ms. Kraus, Senior Council adviser, can be heard as she tries to assemble a Senior Council meeting. One can usually walk into a meeting to find the room crowded and alive with enthusiasm and drive to make '87 rock!! Senior Council is made up of the following committees: Items, Events, Prom, and Senior Trip. Their members fill every corner of the room, even sitting on top of tables and cabinets, ready to make sure the seniors get what they want. Voices become hushed, faces expectant, pens poised over notepads, as Ms. Kraus and President Eddie Alijaj begin the meeting.

Eddie is assisted by Vice-President Sheryl Heitner, Treasurers Kathleen Baierlein, Lisbet Vargas, and Secretaries Marlene Militano,Rafalena Santos. Of course, the most important members are the representatives themselves. Two representatives from each senior homeroom are selected and assigned to Council Committees. The whole council works efficiently to present selections to the senior class to vote upon.

Senior Council does their job well, and does it with style. It's not easy putting together a fun-filled senior year and pleasing everyone. The Oscar please....presented to the council who produced a classic year. Here's looking at you, kids!

By the Students and for the Students

Ralph Sierra, President of the Student Government said, "Student Government makes me feel good about myself knowing I am helping other people." Student Government is made up of 13 students who devote their time to raising money, organizing dances, and planning activities for Lane.

To be in the Student Government you must be elected just like a real politician. You must have no dean's record and good grades which must stay good in order to remain in this organization.

This year, Ralph Sierra and Andrea Cucchiara will go to Washington for one week, while the Junior representatives will spend the weekend in Albany at a Jewish-Christian Conference.

Mrs. L. Wallner, P. Rodriguez, J. Afriyie, J. Raplee, G. Gonzalez, K. Cabrol, Miss R. Treiber.

Seekers

Study the Bible and...

...seek spiritual fulfillment in your life. The Seekers in their studying and readings, "Pray for each other, the people of Lane, and the world", said Ms. R. Treiber—the Seeker adviser. Their caring extends beyond prayer. The students are also engaging in fund raising avtivities for Cystic Fibrosis by participating in a Bowl-a-Thon. Occasionally guest speakers come to their meetings to discuss Biblical themes and principles.

Asian Club

From Asia with Love

Lane's Asian club, advised by Mr. Cohen, is a club for Asian students to help them adjust to our language and culture.

During the year the students attend meetings, listen to speakers, and see slide shows. This year 4 trips are planned around the city.

There are about thirty students in the Asian Club, and this is its second successful year.

Dear Graduates of the Class of June 1987:

The rapid approach of graduation suddenly serves to bring to all of us the realization that your stay at Franklin K. Lane High School was only a temporary one. It suddenly becomes difficult to imagine what will become of each of you in the years to come and what will become of those who remain at Lane for future generations. Each of you must thrust aside these past three or four years and face the uncertainty that lies ahead. What you leave behind for us are memories of your years at Lane and what you take with you are your own memories of these very special years. These memories take their form in many ways. Memories . . . defined in Webster's dictionary as "recollection . . . the recall and recognition of past experiences." Your memories and our memories may take the form of pictures . . . "a representation as of a person or of objects or the like on a canvas or paper," . . . or photographs of your days at Lane . . . "the art or process of producing images on a sensitive surface." There is an art form which does all of this . . . the movies. They conjure up memories by the use of photography and pictures.

It became clear at the start of the twentieth century that of the machines which have changed our lives in this century, only the internal combustion engine rivals the movie camera in the scope of its influence. The movie was born at the start of what has been called "the big change," the biggest change in human history . . . the industrialization of much of mankind in less than half a century. The movies has been the mirror of that change, and, in mirroring, it became the agent of the change as well. Other mass media, such as television, newspapers, magazines and the like, have played their parts in constructing the image of mechanized civilization, but the movie did it first and did it most vividly. Future historians, when they search the possible ruins of our vanished civilization and look for proof of our once thriving civilizations, will not only look for manuscripts but for motion pictures, if we have the sense to preserve them.

The theme for this yearbook is "The Movies," and it indeed is a most appropriate theme. You have grown up with the movies, whether in the movie houses or on television. It has been an escape from reality, an illusion, a goal to strive for . . . in fact, it has been all things to all people. It has given you memories of the past and visions of the future. Just think what it would be like to look at a movie of the last three or four years of your life, covering your stay at our school. What a wonderful treasure house of recollections that would be for all of us. It is my hope that your memories will be wonderful and that they will always be cherished.

I believe that when you look back on your years at Lane, through your memories and through this yearbook, you will be reminded of the best times of your adolescence. Those special memories will never change . . . you will change and the world you live in will change . . . the memories will always be the same. Cherish them for the rest of your lives . . . just as we at Lane will cherish our memories of each of you.

For your future, I wish you good health, much success, but most of all, happiness. Good luck and Godspeed.

With much affection,

Morton Damesek

Baseball

All Stars, All The Time!!

The 1986 baseball team was really fantastic, winning twenty-two games and the Queens Championship. The team represented Lane's outstanding athletic ability over other high schools.

Besides conquering the Championship, the team also participated in the playoffs three years in a row. The team was so successful that it was rated#1 by the Daily News and the New York Post. Way to go! !

Lane's ace pitcher, Chris Leahy, says, "We're a team, and we work together. That's what it's all about."

The baseball team had a fabulous season and they're committed to have an even better season this year. Baseball will always be an important part of Lane's past, present, and future. Hopefully as you read this, the 1987 team will have become City Champs!

Kneeling: Mike Vincguzi, Jose Almanzar, Julio Rosario.

Front: T. Alcamo, R. Schoenfeld, G. Rivera, P. Gilmore Back: J. Mangi, S. Palamara, J. Martinez, S. Tenzer, A. Maffea, D. Reyes

Mr. J. Organek who has been the coach of the boy's bowling team for the past fifteen years, is very proud of this year's team. The bowling team consists of ten boys who practice three times a week at Woodhaven Lanes. This year their bowling record was 6-4, by playing Edison, Hillcrest, Van Buren, Adams, and Townsend Harris.

Their season is from September to November. "We have some great players," said Mr. Organek, referring to Sal Palamara who came through with a 183 average over ten games, and Sammy Tenzer who has a 163 average. "Sal is a very consistent player and he made it to the individuals. He's the best bowler Lane's ever had." As for next year? Well the hopefuls are Joe Mangi, Tom Alcamo, and Rob Schoenfeld. Hopefully these guys will help by bringing Lane into the Division Championship.

Knocking 'em down!

The Girl's Bowling team coached by Ms. A. Soler is still celebrating! Out of eight matches against Bryant, Whitney, Cleveland and Queens Vocational, they came through with four wins, four losses and third place in the division. Isa Moccio, a senior, has been on the bowling team for four years. This year, she is the captain of the team and is competing for her fourth time in the city-wide individual championships.She has a 170 average in the competition games.

This year's team is made up of mostly freshmen. Ms. Soler has high hopes for them. Maybe next year they'll come in first place. We hope so! Good Luck to next year's Bowling Team.

Swimming

No Nose Dives!

Did you ever feel like taking a nice swim, but, after you've stopped daydreaming, realize it's the middle of winter??? Why don't you join the swimming team?

The team, coached by Mr. D. Bernstein since 1959, is really fun!! According to Gilberto Gonzales, this year's captain, "We're like a family and we have alot of fun together!"

There are twelve members on the team who will compete against nine Queens high schools, and hopefully make it to the finals. There are academic rules for eligibility, and alot of practice is required to be on the team, but the swimmers think it's worth it.

"Being on the team provides the ability to meet new people, make new friends, and compete against other schools that you normally wouldn't," said Coach Bernstein. Swim those laps and bring home those trophies. Dive.. Dive..

Tennis

Aces..the best

Last year, Lane's Tennis Team won the Queens Championship in their Division with the help of Mr. J. Organek and team members: Sal Amabile, Hector Torres, Robert Wood, Howie Hymowitz, and John Pacheco.

This year's team will begin practice March 1st in Forest Park and play until June 18th. It is sure to be an outstanding team. Most of the experienced team members are back, and there are new members who are eager to learn and play the game.

Tennis is an extracurricular activity where the kids practice on their own and in school. The team is co-ed. There are three singles and two doubles, included in the seven member team. I asked Mr. Organek what was so good about the team, "It keeps the kids in school. It's an incentive to stay and do well."

As you read this, the Tennis Team may be in the playoffs or champs again! Right, Luv.

Swingin' Guys

Par 1, Par 2, Par 3, HOLE IN ONE!! This is what you might hear if you were to watch Lane's Golf Team in action. Last year, the team, with the help of Coach S. Zalinsky, finished with the division title for the fourth year in a row!!

Lane's Golf Team, even though it is an extracurricular activity, requires the team members to practice three times a week on their own at the Forest Park Golf Course.

The season starts March 1st and ends May 15th. According to Coach Zalinsky, "This year's team is great. I can see and feel their ambition and excitement during the season. I know we can become division champs again and make it a 5th!" Keep on strokin'!!

VARSITY FOOTBALL

This year's football team, led by Coach Lechner, so far, is having a fantastic season: winning their first two games with scores of 18-0 and 10-0. With the help of their fine captains Mike Woods, Lenny Annunziata, Charlie Cruz, and Ralph Sierra, the team is proving to be a "big happy family" of winners!

In 1983, Lane's football team, led by Coach Englisis, won the division championship. Under the direction of their new coach, the team is confident they can do it again this year. Their confidence is the real key to the team's success.

The football team consists of fourty-two members. Each member is part of the family. Any Laneite can see these hard-working guys practicing everyday. If a team member misses one practice without notification, he is cut from the team. No one in this family wants to be disowned. Coach Lechner said, "Football is not just a sport. It's a way of life. It establishes friendships that last a lifetime."

Hey Coach Lechner, how about a team for the girls!?!

Growing toward Varsity

Everyone may think Varsity Football and Junior Varsity Football are the same thing. Actually, they are totally different. Junior Varsity Football is for freshmen and sophomores who compete against other schools' Junior Varsity teams. There is no division, no titles, and no championships. Varsity Football is for Juniors and Seniors who compete for division titles. According to Coach H. Lechner, J. V. Football gives the kids a chance to learn about the game, practice, and get ready to compete when they become Juniors. J. V. Football, like Varsity Football, creates friendships that last through high school, and beyond. There are about 20 players on the Junior Varsity team, each with the potential of becoming outstanding Varsity players and coming out on top!

Bouncing high

The Lane Handball Team coached by Mr. R. Kaplan for the last three years is hoping to come out with another group of fine, experienced players who have the ability and the incentive to make it to the division finals, as they did last year, and win the title! At press time, Mr. Kaplan was recruiting and holding tryouts for this year's team.

The team will consist of seven players who compete. This includes 1 boy's double, 2 boy's singles, 1 girl's double, and 1 girl's single. The Handball Team practices three times a week, and in the Spring, Lane offers handball as a class so everyone can play! Just grab your ball, find a wall, and practice. Or even better, get a friend and play handball. It's as easy as that to play, but difficult to play competitively.

Track Teams. . .Fact or Fiction?

Girls' Track

Football, baseball, softball, tennis, basketball, track. . .TRACK?!!! That's right, it's true. Franklin K. Lane does have a track team. Two of them as a matter of fact! Nothing is ever said of the track teams, yet they still exist.

Last year, the girl's cross country team took third place in the borough. The boy's team didn't win due to lack of. . .yes, boys! Hard to believe, isn't it? According to Michael Rosenthal, the coach, "Not many boys know about the team. Next year, we are hopeful to get more boys involved and make them champions!"

Mrs. M. Kellen, who is the coach of the girl's track team, explained how good track is. "It's good for your heart. You don't need any special equipment, you don't even need a coach! All you need is a good pair of running shoes, a street, and a little effort. You can never be too old for track. Hey, how do you think you get to live to be 100? Eat right, get enough sleep and keep on running!"

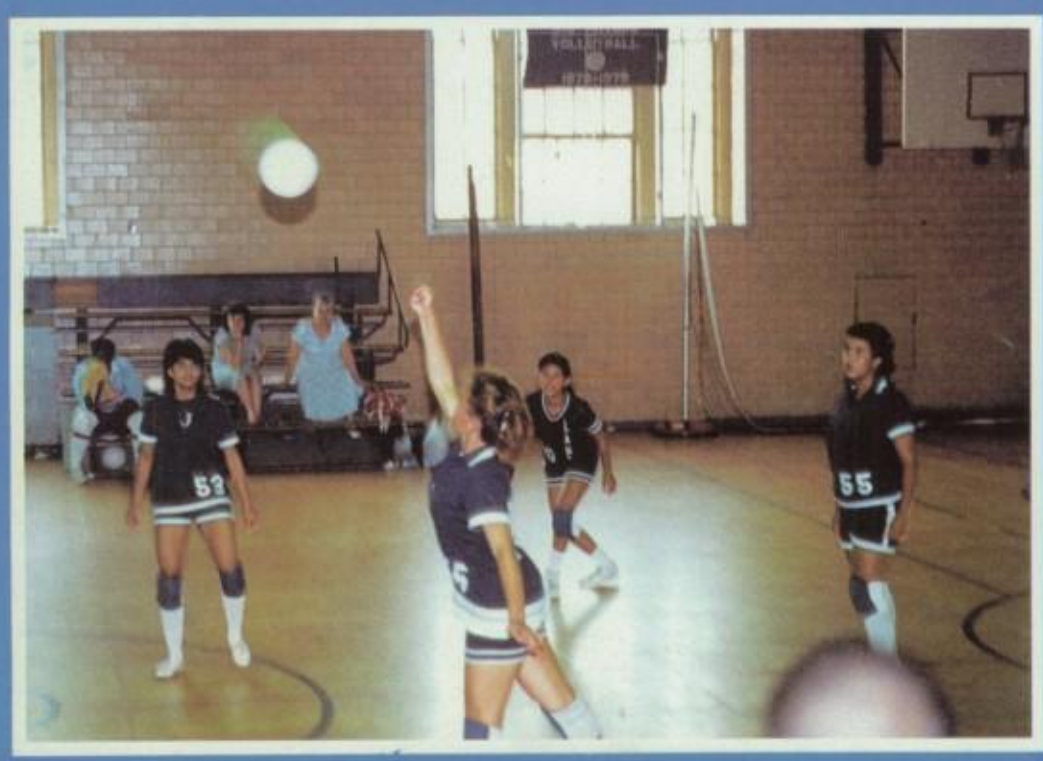
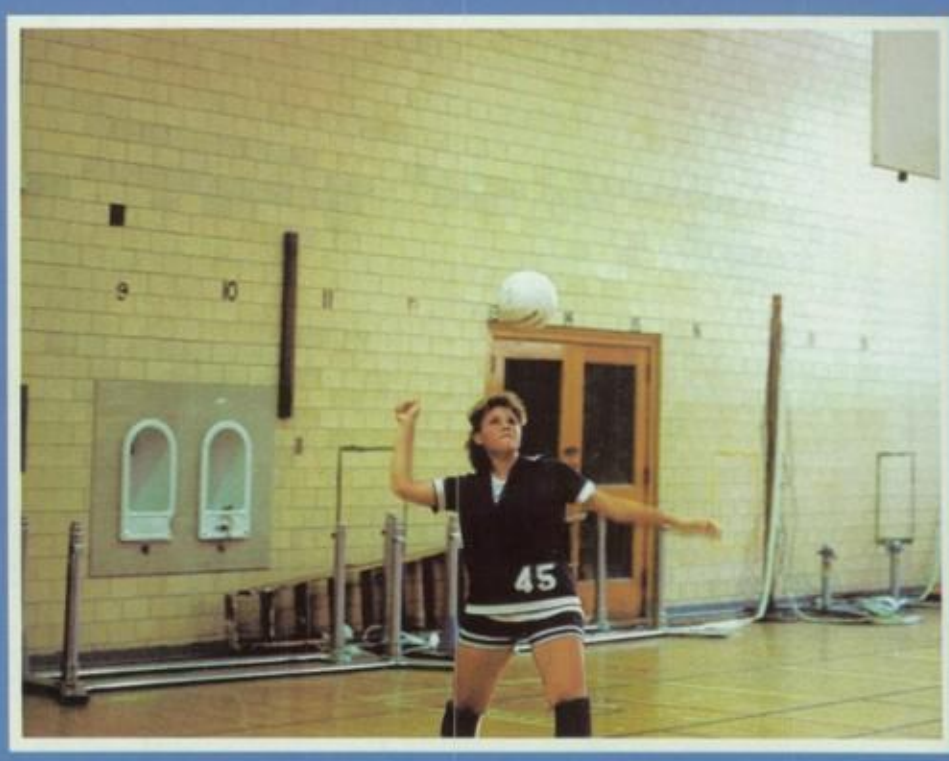
CONGRATULATIONS to our girl's Volleyball team that pulled off a 7-1 record this season and came through as the division CHAMPS!!

The team consists of seven members: Captain Yolanda Merced, Co-captain Mushunda Braswell, Elizabeth Castillo, Mabel Hernandez, Rose Loualgio, Adis Novieto, and Icksy Oviedo. Mr. M. Metzger, who has been the coach for three years said, "The girls work extra hard and ignore pain. They sacrifice their social life and train hard. They deserve it!"

The girls on the team practice three days a week. There are the basic academic requirements to be on the team: pass four major subjects including physical education.

Yolanda Merced was asked what she thought was the best thing about being on the team. Her answer: "The girls. We work as a team on the court, but they're like my family. I love them."





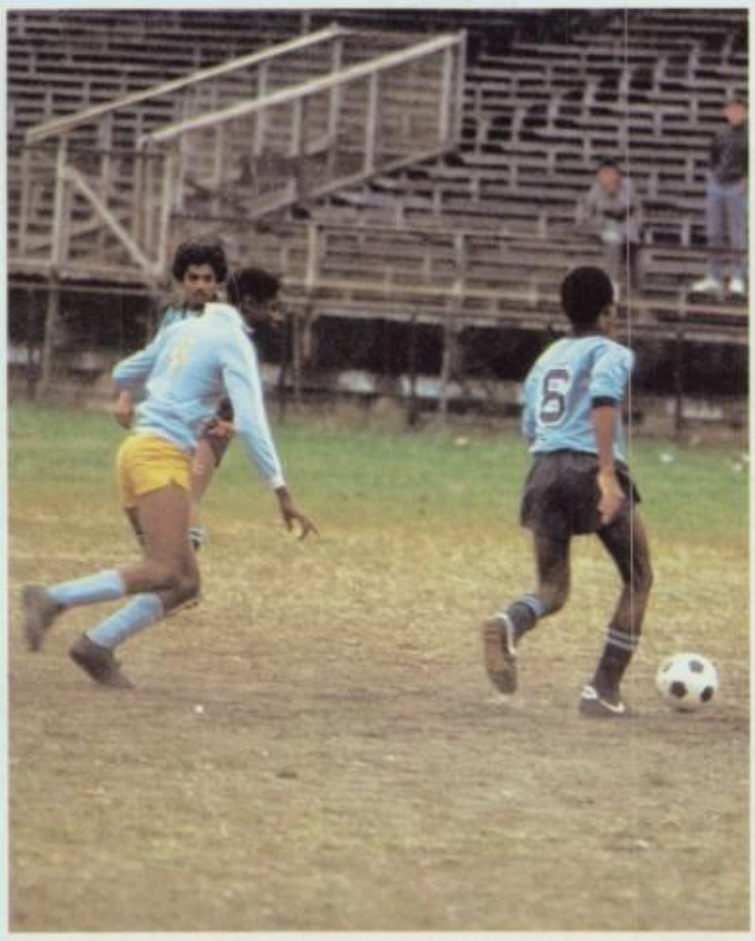
Soccer Team

Soccer Kicks

This year's Soccer team, led by Coach Zalinsky, is FANTASTIC!!Everyday, you can look outside and see the team practicing. No wonder they hold many winning records, and a number of division titles in the past fifteen years! To be on the soccer team, you must meet a number of academic requirements. According to Coach S. Zalinsky, "A member must be a person of good character."

The team is made up of twenty members: freshman to seniors. They work together, and are confident that they will win this year's division title. Let's hope so!!

Rear: S. Roberts, J. Burgos, O. Gomez, A. Rodriquez, A. Guillen, H. Stucky, D. Hunter, W. Alcide, J. Najarro, D. Madden, K. Johnson, S. Zalinsky Front: C. Gomez, S. Ozaetta, A. Alzate, N. Rosales, J. Larrazabal, J. Afriye, G. Gordon



Boy's Basketball

Dribble...Dribble...Slam Dunk

The members of the Lane Basketball Team have their work cut out for them. Coach Koller demands members to play basketball to their fullest potential.

Coach Koller has been a coach for five years, and finds the job very rewarding. He acts as a "father, mother, brother and sister figure" to all the members on the team. Since the team spends so much time together, they really get involved with each others' personal lives.

Coach Koller puts the team through vigorous workouts everyday after school. Practice begins with stretching exercises, then continues with drills designed to improve the team. If members miss a practice and do not have a good excuse, they will be forced to miss a game. Missing too many practices will cause a member to be kicked off the team.

Winning basketball games aren't the only victories. Members who have graduated have come back to thank Coach Koller. "In the past three years, every senior has gone on to college. And, no matter how small or big they are, I find a college that suits them."

Winning games aren't the only victories for this team.

Girls' Basketball

No Foul Play Here

"It's about time we had a girl's basketball team again. It's healthy, adds to school spirit, and is a lot of fun!" That's what Mrs. Green, or rather Coach Green, said when asked about the team. The team which has been put together again this year, consists of eleven girls, freshmen to seniors. The season starts in November and ends in February and is fabulous. Their record to date (1/87) is seven wins and four losses.

The girls practice three times a week in school, and compete against other schools in the Queens Division. Next year, the team, which is now only a club, will become an official league team.
Congrats girls!!!

Home Runs Here

Ms. Kraus, who has coached the girl's softball team for the past fifteen years, is very proud of this year's team. All the girls on the team are great! The softball team practices two to five days a week and then they compete to go into the city championship. The season starts in March, and it should be a great one. "The team is not only there for the girls to develop their athletic ability but also to develop responsibility, social values, and most of all to have fun!!" said Ms. Kraus.

Lane's softball team is another example of the athletic excellence found in our coaching staff and students. Play ball!!

Senior Trip 1987

There's Fun and Bedlam in Florida as the Seniors Take Over the Magic Kingdom . . . and Sun Their Buns!!!

Well here we are, the Senior Trip to Florida. Wow! What a great trip! Arriving in Florida had to be one of the best feelings ever. What a change in temperature: from 20 degrees in New York to 70 degrees in Florida.

Disney World was a fantastic sight. It was beautiful. All the Disney characters made you feel wanted, and we did. We all felt comfortable.

The beach scene was hysterical. Ms. Kraus in her little bikini, did you ever see that? Marlane acting sexy and showing her body to every male in sight: you could tell she was a New Yorker. Oh, and another one, Mr. Damesek in shorts. That must have taken the cake; he looked like the King of Florida.

Now we're back home wishing we were on the warm beaches and in hot Florida sun. We loved it.

F.K. Lane: The Movie

The moviegoer sees nothing but stars in "F.K. Lane : The Movie." Directed by Morton Damesek, it keeps the audience at the edges of their seats. The movie is fast-paced and never ending.

"F.K. Lane : The Movie" deals with a large, diverse group of high school seniors. The characters are all there, from a James Dean high school rebel to a Marilyn Monroe knockout to an aspiring Clint Eastwood, who'd like his day made.

As the movie progresses, the moviegoer sees constant change. However different the seniors are, F.K. Lane brings them together. Love, friendships, good and bad times shown in the movie can never be forgotten. The movie is a classic. It's one of those movies that must be seen. Highly recommended and very unforgettable!! Is it a light or a flame that can no longer hold a pretty word where poetry's face has grown old
A selfish cry or a painted sky-
Perhaps a horse in heaven most willing to die.
But, wait!-stop and ask the dove
Is it life, hate-or is it love?
"So after years and time very badly spent of a flat with four walls requesting rent.
There are windows of love and windows of pain never wanting to snow-never wanting to rain.
There is black-Oh, a black so deep presenting hair of love-for which I did sleep."
Now in a slow haste I beckon the night

Lynn — A Loving Dedication

In a daylight hour and a midnight task low whispers sing so softly and warm.
For a brook of water can wear a mask
And a clown of hope can live in mourn.
For when the mind of a blue pigeon can painfully recall
Those that live and hide to jokingly cry.
And of the rocks that live so as not to die at all.
Could there exist a demon up in the sky?
For if such a tragedy were to be true
Then may a dagger permeate my heart
And may the colors of life remain a hatred blue
For my love for thou is priceless art.

Ralph A. Rivera

A Bird of Mine is Yours to Keep

A bird is a creature of nature's flight where man's own truths can be so wrong
It is a winter's story, a giant's might a story of the weak beckoning the strong.

A bird is a victim of life's expense where a fatal cure is far from relief
It is a hateful tale of true credence and a farfetched lie of pure belief.

A bird of mine is yours to keep for a nature's song is far too vain
It is a love that is shallow, a love that is deep and it is a melted flake-a drop of rain.

Ralph A. Rivera

Sandra.

As I pass through the doorway, I see her collapsed in her armchair. She's a delicate soul of 5' in stature, yet she had the strength to hold the world on her shoulders. When she awoke, you could see the redness in her eyes that tells you she worked another hard day getting all the garbage work that none of the princesses wanted to do. She worries about all but herself as she sits studying for her next night school examination. With all of her worries and fears, she still makes time to spend with me, sometimes on her days off. When I think of how hard she works and how he, the one that caused such turmoil in our lives, sits in the lap of luxury with that evil grin on his face, it makes me love her even more. Sure she gets angry wanting to give up, wanting to run away from it all - she then remembers her young children at home and moves the world for them once more.

I Wonder Why?

Men climbing a mountain is a funny thing,
Doesn't it scare them looking down?
I guess they're not worried,
Maybe that's why they do it.
I wonder why?

Men who climb mountains,
almost touch the sky,
Maybe that's why they do it.
I wonder why?

What do they hear,
when they get to the top?
They might hear the birds,
or a falling rock off the top.
Maybe that's why they do it.
I wonder why?

Men will try to climb mountains, practically risking their life,
and if and when they get there,
They go right back down
Maybe that's why they do it.
I wonder why?

Peggy Sue dated many guys, but after 9 1/2 weeks they were all gone with the wind. But, her life soon changed when she met Rambo. Peggy Sue and Rambo spent alot of time listening to the sounds of music. One night Peggy Sue and Rambo went to the Twilight Zone Club, but they left because it was an animal house. They spent alot of time together and were falling in love. Rambo wanted to be the Wizard of Oz so he went back to school. After he graduated Rambo and Peggy Sue got married.

"If Lane Were Hollywood" would be

Morton Damesek directing a Richard E. Santaga picture. The stage was set. Mr. Santaga was leading a group of actors into a very difficult scene. It was quiet on the set but outside you could hear the gun shots and screaming in the filming going on at the next lot. The sounds blended together to form a compound of noise - monsters growling, women screaming, cars honking but above all you could hear Mr. Santaga demanding, at the top of his lungs a perfect scene!!

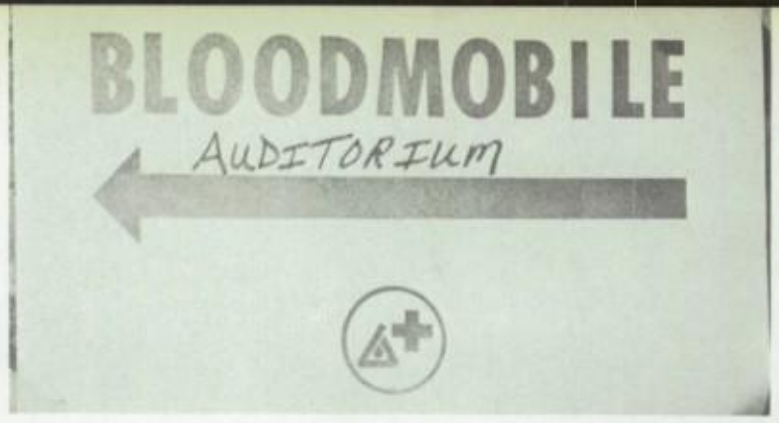
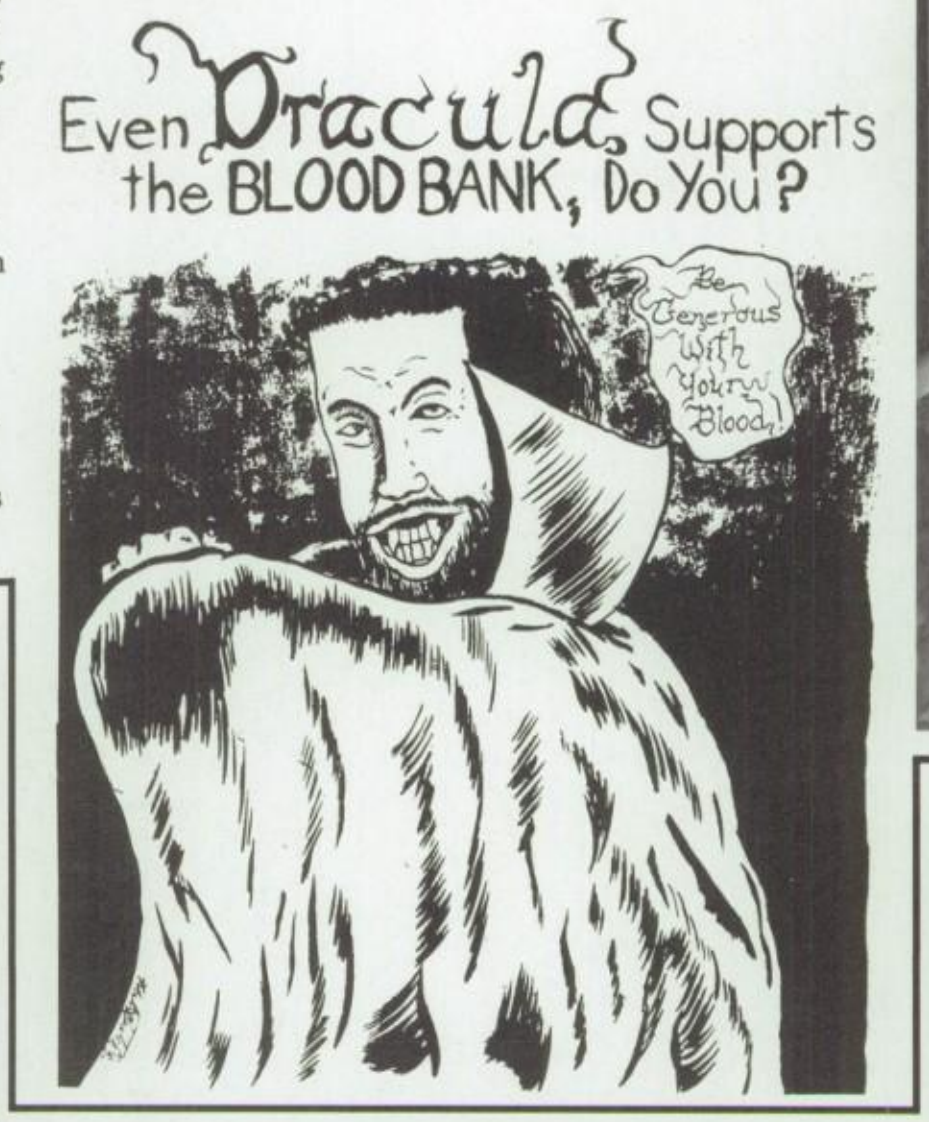
Community Service

Serving With Pride

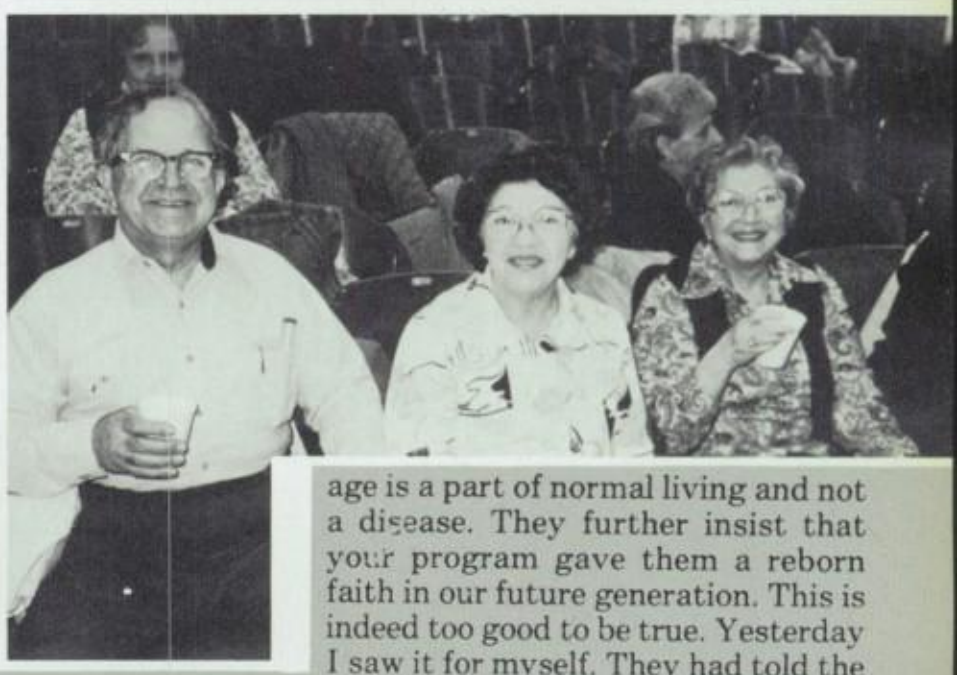
Community service is one of the many activities that makes Lane an outstanding school. Lane's many service activities have brought them honor twice in the last three years. Lane was also the only school to receive a plaque this year for community service. Student Gov't's Toys for Tots and Senior Citizens Activity Day bring happiness to children of unwed mothers and to the Senior Citizens in the community.

The Bowl-A-Thon for Cystic Fibrosis and visits to the Bernard Feinson Center aid the handicapped. And, a countless number of lives are saved with the Blood Drive held annually. Irene Hall, who is involved with many of the service activities says,"I feel grateful that I can share my happiness with other people."





LOVINGLY DONATED BY
FRANKLIN K. LANE
HIGH SCHOOL



Already we share something in common: you represent your school, I speak for many senior citizens who have asked me to tell you how much they appreciated your hospitality on prior occasions. They vow that your magnimosity has gone far beyond the call of compassion. They refer to your program as a recognition that age is a part of normal living and not a disease. They further insist that your program gave them a reborn faith in our future generation. This is indeed too good to be true. Yesterday I saw it for myself. They had told the truth! The auditorium suddenly filled with a magic aroma. That heavenly spirit was sensed by pupil and oldster alike.

Gratefully yours,

SEXUAL ATTRACTION A MALE'S VIEWPOINT:

Something special and exciting happened the first time you saw her at a party or at the beach or in class or in some special setting you'll never forget. As soon as you saw her, you felt drawn to her without knowing why. Or maybe you had known this special girl for quite some time without fully realizing how wonderful, sexy, and unique she really was until...

Sexual attraction is a complex and involved process. You may find a girl attractive for several reasons. She may remind you of a fantasy love- the girl of your dreams, a favorite celebrity- or she may remind you of someone or something that has been special to you. You may be partial to a certain type- blonde, brunette, funloving girls or studious girls with glasses and knitted skirts. Maybe you fall for, time after time, girls who are confident and outgoing, or maybe your dream girl is tender and quiet, someone whose gentle smile speaks to you in a special way.

Why are guys attracted to one type of girl but not to another? How is it that you can be great friends with one girl yet feel no special attraction to her, while feeling overwhelming desire for a girl you hardly know at all? When it comes to the subject of sexual attraction, there are alot of maybes and few correct answers.

You may like girls whose certain qualities you either like in yourself or already have. Or you can like girls who can fulfill your needs- whether that means feeling better about yourself or just having a good time. The girl who's a stranger always seems to be the right one for you. She's mysterious, and it's always great to discover someone new. On the other hand, someone you know really well and like a lot may not be sexually attractive, because she's too familiar, or too much like a sister.

Sexual attraction has a certain degree of magic, a mystical air about it that defies definition. Often, you can't pinpoint the reason why one girl attracts you while another doesn't. But sexual attraction can be useful. It may give you the courage and the confidence to talk to her. You may even find yourself asking her out.

Sexual attraction can also be just fun. It can give your eyes a new sparkle, your walk a new lightness, your spirits a new life, or a sense of happiness in just being alive.

A particular attraction may or may not lead to a relationship, but just feeling that interest and excitement about another person can be fun.

Some say that sexual attraction (at least at first) is based mostly on physical attraction and therefore, artificial. Appreciating a girl's attractiveness may be just the first step in getting to know her and like her.

Moving past the initial attraction to build a real relationship requires getting to know the girl as a full dimensional person. Some people, you may have noticed, are best appreciated from afar, while others become more attractive to you as you get to know them better and begin to discover their other qualities-their kindness, integrity, wittiness, or sensitivity which can add wonders to their already impressive form.

The first time I saw Jody, at the beginning of our junior year, she was surrounded by several guys who were quite obviously flirting with her. I was surprised because Jody was the most improbable mankiller I had ever seen. She was skinny, with unkept, curly hair, and had a persistent allergy that caused her to sniffle. She made no attempt at being cool or chic. When she laughed, her laughter had a disturbing giggly quality to it. She tripped over wastebaskets. Her clothes weren't the most fashionable. I wondered what these guys saw in this weird-looking chick.

A few weeks later when Jody and I were assigned to work together on an English project, I found out that she was a bright, witty, kind, and sensitive person. She knew how to listen and share feelings. She made me feel right at home and she never betrayed that trust. While making these discoveries, my attraction to Jody grew steadily, until I no longer cared that she wasn't beautiful. She was, and still is, one of the most attractive girls I have ever met.

Although I don't like Jody as to have a relationship with her, I've learned, thanks to her, that great, attractive, exciting girls come in all physical types. While it's great fun to meet the eyes of a beautiful mysterious stranger across a crowded room, you may find that your most special moments come when you're with a girl who is not only sexually attractive but also a good friend, someone with whom you may enjoy a full happy life that includes mutual commitment, sexual sharing, trust, respect, and, most importantly, a strong and enduring love.

WORLD SERIES CHAMPIONS 1986

"Let's Go Mets!"

What would ultimately evolve into the most exciting and wonderous of all Mets seasons, ironically, got off to a rocky start. During spring training in St. Petersburgh, there were thoughts of a championship season. After two years of near misses, Met manager Davey Johnson and his players felt that 1986 would be their year. But when the Mets began the season with a 2-3 record and lost their home opener, people began to question the team's chances. Then the Mets started playing the way their fans expected them to. They had established themselves as the team to beat in the National League.

It all began in 1985 when the Mets were eliminated from going to the playoffs by the St. Louis Cardinals. They seemed to have been preparing for the World Series since then. In spring training, Mets management made smart trades and acquired much needed players. They obtained pitcher Bob Ojeda to strengthen their pitching staff, and an additional second baseman, Tim Teufel to backup Wally Backman. With the acquistion of the new players, minor leaguers, and the veterans, together, they made a perfect combination.

The Mets ended their post-season by snatching the National League Championship title from the Houston Astros. They were soon on their way to becoming World Champions. Even before they made it to the Series, the Mets experienced commercial success. Strawberry got his health kicks drinking milk; Darling pitched for RC Cola; Carter showered with Ivory Soap or didn't shower at all. They also proved in their MTV video that they could "Do it, do it, do it!"

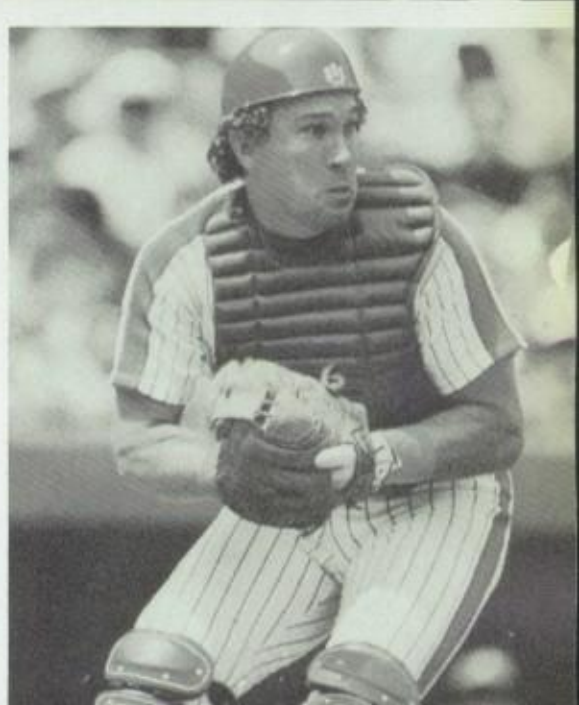
Soon it was the World Series and once again the Mets lost the opening and second game. Only one team had ever lost the first two games and come back as Champions- the '85 Royals.

The first game was a disappointing loss because the one and only run was scored when Teufel committed an error. But New York rebounded and blew away Boston in games three and four.

When Boston won game five, it gave them a 3-2 game edge. Met fans were getting worried. In the sixth game, the Mets were down to their last out when Mookie Wilson came to the plate. He hit a bouncer that went through first baseman Bill Buckner's legs. MVP Ray Knight sped home to score the winning run. Too bad for Boston; their champagne went to waste.

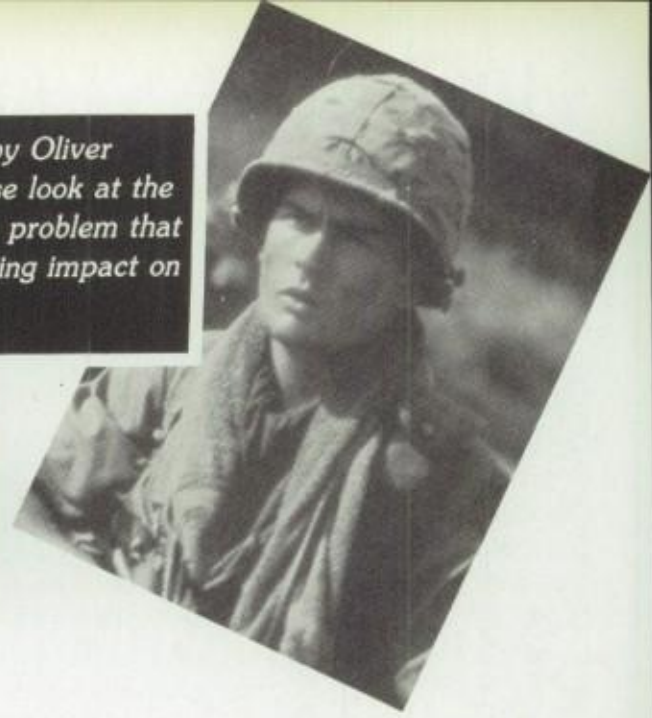
The long-awaited day finally arrived when the Mets could honestly say "We're #1". Orosco struck out the last man and beat Boston 8-5 in front of a sold out Shea Stadium crowd. When the Mets went into the locker room they did the most obvious and normal thing- they sprayed each other with champagne.

The Mets first manager, Casey Stengel, labeled his team the "Amazin' Mets". At that time they were amazingly bad, but now they are amazingly good.
Congratulations!!



Joan Jett, Michael J. Fox - Actor and rock'n roller teamed up in "Light of Day" to become the modern day Bogart and Bacall

Platoon - Directed by Oliver Stone, it took a close look at the Vietnam conflict - a problem that has had an everlasting impact on America



MINI MAG REVIEW

Tina Turner - Her divorce from Ike Turner helped her make a tremendous come back on the music charts

Throughout 1986-1987, there have been entertainers who have disappeared from the public eye, those who have made tremendous comebacks and, those who have shown the public that clearly, they are here to stay. A few examples...

Run D.M.C. - They "Walked Their Way" up the charts with Aerosmith and proved that rock and rap can go together.

Whitney Houston, Janet Jackson - Both sing, dance, act and capture the hearts of teenagers throughout the country.

Harrison Ford - In "Mosquito Coast", he shed the image of 'Han Solo' to portray an obsessive inventor concerned with the future of the world.

Judd Nelson - As a member of the 'Brat Pack', he was responsible for the success of such movies as "The Breakfast Club" and "St. Elmo's Fire". But all alone in the movie "From the Hip", he proved to be a bona fide star.

Moonlighting - After becoming one of the more popular shows on television, the stars, Bruce Willis and Cybill Shepard, started to find other jobs. Bruce became a singer, and Cybil turned to endorsing beauty products.

Sting - As Phil before him, Sting found success with his solo career as well as his association with The Police. But let's not forget his movie career, a role in "Dune" led him starring in "The Bride".

E.T. - One alien who really knows about phoning home - E.T. was rated as one of the top grossing films of all time ($228 million)

Paul Hogan - With co-star Linda Kozlowski, he helped "Crocodile Dundee" make a killing at the box office

Tom Cruise - Known for his "What the $@#!" attitude and the glasses that never go out of style

Mickey and Minnie Mouse - This duo is celebrating their fifteenth anniversary. Let's hope Sean and Madonna last that long.

Jon Bon Jovi - He made it big in 1986 with his hit album "Slippery When Wet".

David Lee Roth - He went solo not only to become "Crazy From the Heat", but to become the HOTTEST in spandex pants

FITSBIE

The date, September 8th, the year 1986...It was the first day back to classes and the day started out as it normally would have. I took my shower, skipped breakfast, and headed out the door in a rush.

I entered the school at the front entrance and when I first caught sight of a human I heard screams. People stayed far from me and some even turned their heads. It seemed like I was different. I felt so alone in a place were I felt I belonged. I began to feel sick; I went to the bathroom. As I passed the mirror, I saw myself, and, I also screamed! Believe it or not, I looked like E.T.

Then I awoke in a cold sweat. Oh! How relieved I was to find out I was dreaming & THEN....my day started out the same as the one in the dream, I went to school and found exactly what happened in my mind. It's funny I thought I escaped the scary nightmare only to find I was really living it...do do do do do do do do do.

Janine Judge

Close Encounters of the worst kind....

It was the end of my first term in Lane and the beginning of a life time in Math. It's such a horrible feeling to keep on taking the same Math class over and over. I got to know just about each and every math teacher in this school. They were just as sick of me as I was of them. It was like I'd walk into the class and they'd greet me by saying "Oh, it's you again!?" They really make you feel good (HA). So this went on for three, yes three years of math that should have been done long before. I have to admit it was long, but I had fun through it because I was with my friend: (that's the reason for failing probably.) So now we both know all the math and all the math teachers. I hope to never see another 'pi r' squared.

Danae Messina

Scientists have said that there are many other solar systems besides our own. Their technology must be thousands, maybe even millions of years ahead of ours. I must imagine that their spacecraft would look like something out of a George Lucas science fiction movie. But for me, the most interesting thing to find out is what the aliens look like. Our leaders should not panic but should not take it lightly either. This world has so many different problems that the population of Earth might be better off not having any contact with inhabited planets.

Alfonso Lum

The Twilight Zone

It was an ordinary day after an extraordinary night. The bright morning sun brought with it no evidence of what had occurred the night before. The sharp stabbing pains I had felt in my chest were no longer there.

I noticed on my way to work everything seemed extremely bright, but, didn't think much of it. I arrived for work at my normal time, 8:45. That's when I noticed...

People didn't see me, hear me, or acknowledge me. This somewhat stunned me, but I took into account that it was Monday morning and people are usually groggy on Mondays. But...

When I arrived at my office and saw my secretary crying and saw my name scratched from the company employee vacation chart, it became all too clear. I walked back to the elevator and it opened before I got there. The gentle old man who was operating it spoke only two words....

...."going up?"

Kathy Baierlein

The Twilight Zone..

The Twilight Zone....sitting in Ms. Raggi's English honors class for two full terms. Listening to her laugh at her own jokes and of course we discussed her one and only favorite topic...Shakespeare. It was like she was married to the man. She knew everything anyone could or would want to know about Shakespeare. Of course, everyday of the month she expressed to us all of her personal feelings about Shakespeare. She drilled it in to our heads, until we all got dizzy and our eyes turned back.

Not like any other Twilight Zone stories, mine has a beneficial ending. Though I hated going to her class and I counted every minute that went by in that period...no matter how much I hated being there, I have to admit I learned a lot in return. I'm going to do well on my English Regents.

Jennifer Guglielmo

The Twilight Zone

I thought I heard some familiar music but I did not take much notice of it as I raced to catch up to my friend Erika. We passed a security guard on our way into Lane. The guard looked familiar and started to say, "You have just entered The Twilight Zone." "I know I'm late. I'm on my way to class," I said, not really paying attention to him. As Erika and I ran to class, I noticed that Lane seemed a bit different. "Does something look strange to you?" "What do you mean?" "There are no kids in the hallway." The students look up at us as we entered our class. The teacher was in the middle of a sentence, "...I'm sorry but rules are rules! There is nothing I can do about it. There will be no homework tonight or any other night. You will all have your weekends free." The students in the class looked like they were about to cry. They all started to yell.

"I demand homework. I don't want to have to go to the beach. I don't want to be deprived of education. I will have so much extra time, I will have nothing to do but (gasp) watch All My Children." The students really wanted to have homework assignments.

An announcement came over the speaker: "You have entered a realm of no return...". That's alright I thought, this is one Twilight Zone that I won't mind seeing over.

Echoes '87 means a great deal to me, and I truly hope you will enjoy reading this book.

This book was designed to serve a purpose: to keep your memories of Lane within your mind and heart after graduation. I thank everyone who worked on this yearbook, for without their work, this book would not be a reflection of the school. Thank you, Mr. Santaga, for preventing 464 from becoming an insane asylum.

And, a special thanks to Tina Virgona, who collected and sorted the names for this index.

Enjoy.

Franklin K. Lane H.S.

Echoes 1937-1987: 999 Jamaica Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11208

In September, 1923, Franklin K. Lane High School opened its doors to a student body of 500, and a staff of twenty-eight. The school bears the name of Franklin Knight Lane, who was Secretary of the Interior during the administration of Woodrow Wilson. The original building, P.S. 85, an elementary school located at 635 Evergreen Avenue, grew too small to house the ever-growing population of Laneites. In 1937, the present building, one of the largest academic high school buildings in the world, was opened.

Franklin K. Lane, the second largest high school in New York City, occupying one square block in area, boasts the largest and best library in the New York City school system. Spacious halls and classrooms, including four gymnasiums and a swimming pool, enable Franklin K. Lane to offer students and staff members alike a building that all have been proud to share and a family all have been proud to be part of for the past fifty years.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
NEW YORK, N.Y. 10007

Dear Seniors:

The Class of '87 is nearing the goal that it has been working towards with diligence and anticipation: graduation!

I congratulate each of you in the confident hope that the "Echoes" of your years at Franklin K. Lane will speak of pleasant memories throughout your lives.

It is especially noteworthy that the Class of '87 is the fiftieth class to graduate from this school. I wish this class great success and happiness. I congratulate Franklin K. Lane High School, its distinguished faculty, alumni, parents and students on this Golden Anniversary.

Sincerely,

Edward I. Koch
Mayor

CHANCELLOR

Dear Graduates of the Class of 1987,

A classic is a work considered to be of the highest excellence, having lasting significance or worth. A novel, a movie or an institution is deserving of that definition when over the course of years it has been recognized for its positive and far-reaching impact on the intellectual and social development of those who benefit from contact with it. In these terms, Franklin K. Lane High School is truly a "classic."

Fifty years ago, the Class of 1937 was the first to graduate from the new location. That first class established a standard of achievement which each succeeding class has enhanced and expanded. Over the course of the last fifty years, many fine young men and women have taken with them into adult life the knowledge and commitment which was encouraged and developed during the years they were students at Lane. As the "Golden Anniversary" Class, you have the special privilege and responsibility of not only continuing the tradition of excellence of the young people who came before you, but of establishing the even higher standard for which all the classes of the next fifty years will strive. I have no doubt that you are up to the challenge.

I extend to each of you my congratulations and my best wishes for success and happiness in your future.

Cordially,

NATHAN QUINONES
Chancellor

On the National Archives Building in Washington, D.C. is engraved: "What Is Past Is Prologue"; well may this phrase be applied to Franklin K. Lane High School on its Golden Anniversary. For the past half century Lane school has been the foundation of and a focal point for the Woodhaven community. Thousands upon thousands of neighborhood youngsters have passed through her doors gaining an education, making lifelong friendships, achieving excellence, participating on teams and publications, in clubs and shows, in brief — improving their quality of life.

This would be a sterile list of accomplishments but for the concern, the interest and the loving care that Lane teachers have invested in their students and which has been reciprocated by these very students. If life is short, memory persists. Fifty years of memories are there to remind us of the anniversary that we now celebrate. If the phrase has a ring of truth, then these golden years are but the basis for the many yet to come, ones richer, more exciting, and more rewarding for all who have an interest in Franklin K. Lane High School. Congratulations on reaching this milestone.

Sincerely,

Samuel Kostman

TO MARK THE CELEBRATION OF OUR GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY...

Dear Laneites:

Fifty years ago, this year, the class of '37 was the first graduating class to enter the world from the new building on Dexter Court. From that time to the present there have been many changes, both in the world and in ourselves. Those graduates from the class of 1937 set the standards of excellence for all of you who were to come after them. Their standards were set by the original Laneites who received their high school education in the original Franklin K. Lane High School on Evergreen Avenue in Cypress Hills. The standards set by all of our pioneers are those which present Laneites strive to emulate today.

Stephen Sondheim, one of our most prolific composers, summed up the feelings of growing up and maturing in one of his most beautiful songs, "Our Time."

> "Something is stirring, shifting ground, it's just begun; edges are blurring all around and yesterday is done; feel the flow, hear what's happening, we're what's happening; don't you know; we're the movers and we're the shapers; we're the names in tomorrow's papers; it's up to us, man, to show 'em; it's our time, breathe it in; worlds to change and worlds to win, our time coming through."

Countless generations of Laneites have made their marks on the world. That golden clock tower high atop our school still remains a beacon for all of those who wish to receive an education to make them worthy of taking their place in the world today as graduates of Franklin K. Lane High School. Our halls, classrooms, gyms, fields, lunchrooms, locker rooms and auditorium are all steeped in traditions, memories and history. We have lived through major social upheavals, world wars which took the lives of beloved Laneites, and still we have come through...still we are here, eager to educate the youth of our neighborhood and to make them ready to face the challenges of the outside world. We have come through all of these changes with dignity and with the will to remain that very special school which it has been for thousands of graduates and the school we hope it will be for countless generations of future Laneites.

I can only hope that the Franklin K. lane High School of the future, whatever its gains, whatever its losses, will hold true to its ancient traditions of excellence. We will change and the world we live in will change, and let us hope that the traditions and the values taught at our school will guide us through these changing times and that the world created by all of our efforts will be the very best of all possible worlds.

Sincerely,

Morton Damesek

The Decade

The 30's was a decade of major problems. For one, the stock market collapsed in 1929, leading to the Great Depression of the 1930's. Unemployment and mass suicide were characteristics of this turbulent time. President Roosevelt's New Deal in 1933 helped to ease some of the problems of the decade. The country found itself preparing to enter World War II. On a lighter note New York saw the positive sides of life with the World's Fair of '39. They stepped into the future during the Fair. The purpose of the Fair was to promote international understanding and friendship. The Fair stood as a symbol of our lives and aimed to grasp our problems and the problems of the world around us with all of the scope, ease, and gracefulness symbolized by the round expanse of the perisphere and the towering height of the trylon.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

I recall
Those happy days I spent at the annex
Where the pupils were all of the male sex,
Where the teachers were a sociable bunch,
And where they gave us an hour for lunch;
Walking down Memory Lane.

I recall
My first boat-ride;
Watching the Hudson tide
And the foam flash in the sun-light,
The splendid return trip at night;
Walking down Memory Lane.

I recall
All the teachers I had.
I sure would be glad To see them again,
Just as they were then;
Walking down Memory Lane
And lastly

I recall
All the friends I used to meet
In the lunch-room across the street
From dear old Franklin Lane.
Gee! I'd like to meet them again;
Walking down Memory Lane.

FOREWORD

For the past four years, all our efforts and labors have been directed to the realization of an ambition, — graduation from High School. For now we've come to the parting of ways. The road diverges and the paths are two fold. One course offers us a niche of success in the business world; the other the furthering of our education in college, preparation for our professions, our careers. Both are fought with obstacles, pitfalls, and hardships which have to be overcome, but which in the end only make our goal all the more cherished. But as the years roll by, we become further and further parted from each other. When the bonds of friendship formed in Lane become severed and pleasant memories become vague incidents, there will remain to all the Senior Yearbook as a bridge across the gap between misty yesterday and uncertain today.

Sidney Busch

MY HIGH SCHOOL

For more than a school in its teachings, much more than a guide too,
Rightly possessing a wonderful faculty, with a calibre that's been tried and found true;
Always ready to lend a hand and help us in life's great test,
Noble in your every attempt, to give us of your very best.
Kindness and generosity, in you these wonderful traits are found,
Loudly telling us all that to our hearts you're forever bound.
Integrity, interest, and loyalty, commemorable through absent years,
Not to be recollected without a mist of tears.
Kindling the warmth of friends, as together their hearts blend.
Leaving you portals you see us as we step into a world of care,
Acclaiming our every accomplishments, but with an eye for our welfare.
Nor leaving will we forget, for on our hearts is an etching of you.

CONSOLATION

Gee! It sure is great to be leavin' Lane
All the homework it got to be an awful pain;
And of course I had to do it,
Else when quizzes came I'd rue it.
Gee! It sure is great to be leavin' Lane.

Heck! I'm awfully sorry that I've got to go,
Cause I'm gonna miss it a lot I know,
As a college freshie, you can bet I'll be tormented;
Rest assured freshie teasing is gonna be repented
Heck! I'm awfully sorry that I've got to go.

But maybe I won't have to leave right away,
'Cause there are such things as Regents to make me stay;
And when that fateful Regents arrives for me to woo,
Perhaps I may not successfully struggle thru.
So maybe I won't have to leave right away.

REFLECTIONS

Richard E. Santaga . . . As adviser to the seniors who researched and prepared this special edition of Echoes, change was a creative and moving force. Through the decades of Lane's past and the passing of time there was one constant: the student. The student of the '30's is really no different from the student of the '80's. Schools trips, report cards, Regents, deans, and prom dates are constants to all. Course content has changed, but, the assimilation of knowledge remained a constant goal. Let us hope for the next fifty years, the quest for knowledge and peace will become a constant for future members of the Lane family. Lisa Enkoff . . . As Editor-in-Chief I not only read about Lane's history-I experienced it.

While looking through past editions of Echoes, I realized Franklin K. Lane is not just a school; it is an institution. Descriptions of World War II in history books ceased to be words and became reality as Lane alumni told me of their unusual physical education classes. Each gym period, Laneites would carry stretchers up and down stairs-evidence of the tremendous impact of World War II. The world changed a great deal, and Lane adjusted to that change. Through the years, I saw history repeat itself as seniors graduated from Lane with the same aspirations that seniors have today. I feel fortunate to be a member of the class of '87. David Weinberger . . . My job in this yearbook was to layout the '70's and 1985-1987. Preparing the '80's presented no problems; I knew the people and understood them. The '70's was difficult. I knew none of the students, very few of the teachers, and was too young to understand the time and to comprehend the events. The most ironic of my pages is the 1970 page, depicting the Vietnam conflict which immediately affected Lane students. The collage on pp. 62-63 is a history of the world during Lane's existence: from Jesse Owens winning big in the 1936 Olympics, to the Space Shuttle Challenger disaster of 1986. Lori Melamed . . . Doing research on the '60's, I learned that peace was a very important goal for everyone. Unfortunately, to meet their goal, just the opposite occurred. The '60's was a time for declaring independence while striving for national unity. It was also a time of scientific achievement as well as national tragedies. Peace is always important to everyone, then and now, yet people in the '60's were more inclined to speak out for what they believed in. Gina DeFelice . . . I learned a lot about the '50's. It was good to work with a piece of Lane's history. It was somewhat hard dealing with the yearbooks of the '50's because they were not as advanced as the present days . . . The '80's yearbooks had more material to work with. The school was done over and made to look like new and nine computer labs were built. Juan (Louie) Rivera . . . The research performed on the decade of the '40's improved my empathy for my fellow man. The spirit I acquired from the '40's enlightened me about the way students cared for their fellow classmates: many of whom went to war and didn't return. The togetherness the student body had back then is desperately needed now. Maribel Barbosa . . . I learned that during the '30's and '40's life in the Depression was difficult, but later World War II made life even more of a struggle. The students at Lane were conscious of becoming an example for the future. They were kids at heart and liked to have fun. Many of the boys went off to war and many lost their lives. Many students looked at this tragedy and decided to use their minds to become an example for the future by not letting a war such as this occur again. They were mature and knew what they wanted out of life and they knew that an education was important and valuable. John Clisti . . . Research on the '50's has shown me interesting things from that period. I've realized from the pictures and the stories that student attitudes were not changed by the problems that existed. The people expressed happiness in their work regardless of the war in Korea, and the thought that many of their fathers would be killed or injured. Yet, the Lane students tried to put that fact out of their minds and enjoy the time they spent here. They did not forget the soldiers and showed their appreciation by dedicating many yearbooks of the decade to the soldiers. Reading these yearbooks makes me realize that even if the times change and terrible things happen, people will never stop caring.

DEDICATION OF LANE COURTROOM

The Lane Courtroom, instrumental in the activities of Lane's law classes, was dedicated to a student from the Class of 1928. On November 7, 1986, Principal Damesek, Ms. Kirchgaessner, Coordinator of the Law Studies Program, and many other dignitaries honored Dr. Isidore Starr by renaming the courtroom after him. The Class of 1987 would like to congratulate Dr. Starr on this achievement.

IT'S NINETEEN EIGHTY-FOUR

It's nineteen eighty-four.
The world's not the same as it was before.
Untruth!
We care less, we do much more-
It's nineteen eighty-four.
Listen to Goldstein:
The world is sick and poor-in nineteen eighty-four Take no heed of our Brothers' misguiding lore.
Unchain your freedom
let your psyche soar.
Don't subscribe to peace,
it's only war.
It's nineteen eighty-four.
Love and hate,
what's it for?
It's cold,
it's dark,
it's eighty-four.

THE COST OF LOVE

Love is gained and love is lost

With the latter
What is the cost?

The cost is that of a Broken heart
Because we are so far apart.

FRIENDS

We've come a long way.
Too many memories to forget
We were all there
To help each other when upset.
Together we knew
The laughter and the tears
We stuck togther
Through thick and thin.
We were all there for each other
To conquer our worldly fears.
Playing our games
You'll be father, I'll be mother.
Year'll come and year'll go
Our friendships will expand and grow
This we will be to the end
'Cause we are all loyal friends.

1981

It was a time of change and a time to remember. There were successes and failures, joys and sorrows. For 444 days we grieved for our hostages in Iran, and then joyfully celebrated their long awaited return. Jimmy Carter made his farewell address and Ronald Reagan became the fortieth president of the U.S. We rocked with the new wave music of DEVO, went down to the River with Bruce Springsteen, and mourned the tragic death of John Lennon. We laughed from the comedy of "Stir Crazy", and cried when we saw "Ordinary People." We found out who shot J.R., we watched Miss Piggy bring respect to the word pig, and we found a perfect "10." We argued over nuclear power and the reinstatement of the draft, and took pride in our country with the victory of our hockey team

1980

The 1980 Yearbook was dedicated to Miss Mary Brolly. She was a dedicated Math teacher and guidance counselor.

This was a special year at Lane because Lane was re-designed due to old age which showed itself very clearly to everyone. Lane was given a lot of publicity and considered "The Miracle on Jamaica Avenue." In the end, Lane had repaired all the things that were in need to make Franklin K. Lane High School look as new as it was when the school first opened.

THE DECADE IN REVIEW

The decade began with the release of the United States hostages from Iran. This was followed by a rash of international terrorism which still exists throughout the decade.

Ronald Reagan has been president since the beginning of the decade, and will give up that position in 1988.

The city of New York is being led out of great financial problems by Mayor Ed Koch. The city is in the midst of a corruption crisis. Most New Yorkers believe that the worst in corruption is yet to come.

The decade consisted of several tragedies. Among them were attempted assassinations on the President of the United States and the Pope. The nation was also confronted with a major loss in the space field. Seven Americans were killed on a space mission on the Space Shuttle in 1986.

Lane was now exposed to color yearbooks. At the beginning of the decade we were exposed to sixteen pages of color whereas in 1985 we were exposed to full color senior portraits. Lane's largest yearbooks were published in the 1980's.

A tragedy also struck Lane. On a 1984 school trip to Great Adventure amusement park, four students perished in a fire in the Haunted Castle.

In all, most people think of the 1980's as a time of turbulence, with terrorism up and local crime down, with gas prices as high as $1.45 and as low as 77 cents a gallon. One thing that's for sure is that the most colorful and entertaining yearbooks were published in the 1980's.

During the 1978-79 school year, the annual Sings began. Putting the separate years against one another, the Junior class pulled out a victory.

FOREVER YOUNG

May God bless and keep you always
May your wishes all come true
May you always do for others
And let others do for you

May you build a ladder to the stars and climb on every rung
May you stay forever young

May you grow up to be righteous
May you grow up to be true
May you always see the truth and the light surrounding you

May you always be courageous
Stand upright in the storm
And may you stay forever young

May your hands always be busy
May your feet always be swift
May you have a strong foundation
When the winds of change shift

May your heart always be joyful
May your song always be sung
And may you stay forever young

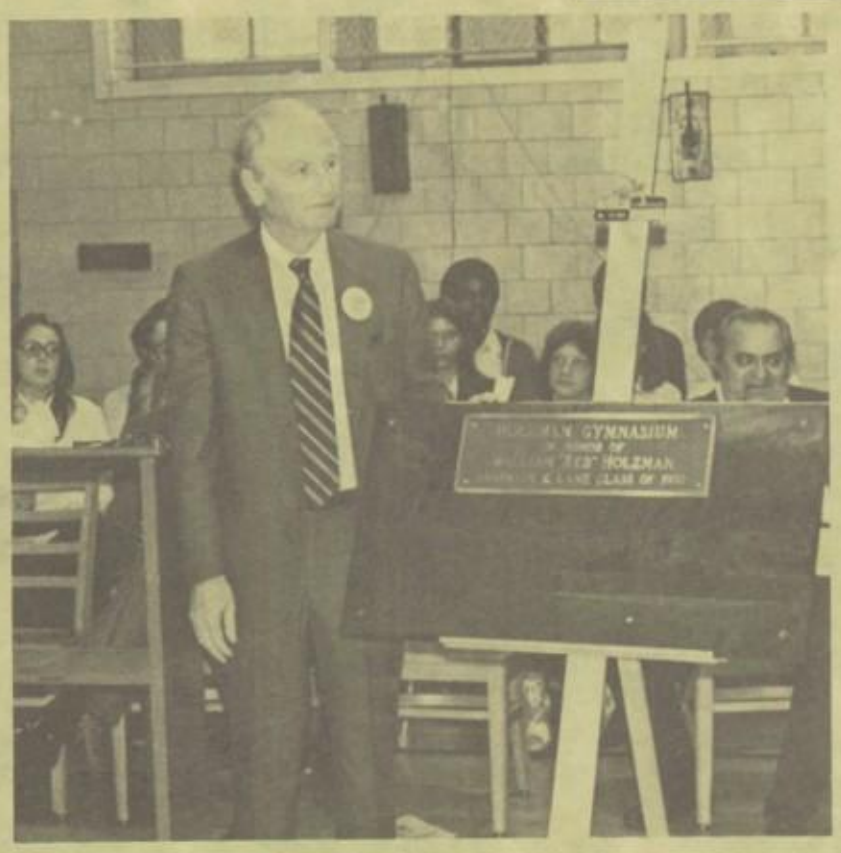
FOREVER YOUNG: YEARBOOK THEME



LANE DEDICATES THE SCHOOL GYM TO RED HOLZMAN CLASS OF 1938

In an event that was complete with sports celebrities, coaches, managers, bands, basketball exercises by Lane's varsity team and alumni, Mr. Red Holzman was honored by the student body, faculty and staff of the school, as the gym was renamed, "In honor of William "Red" Holzman, Class of 1938."

The world renowned coach of the then New York Knicks was an outstanding basketball player during his last two years at Lane. As the Knicks coach, he helped lead them to two National Basketball Association World Championships and was the second coach ever to lead a professional team to win over 500 games.

During the 1976-77 school year, a new president was elected. Jimmy Carter, former Georgia Governor, was victorious over incumbent Gerald Ford in November of 1976.

As for television, much controversy surfaced over the use of sex and violence in popular programs. However, two shows that didn't rely on sex or violence heavily, helped push ABC into the ratings lead. The weekly series "Soap" and the mini-series "Roots" contributed to the ABC dominance in the ratings war.

"WHERE ARE YOU, SUPER HEROES?"

While growing up, our world was filled with many evil men who sought to destroy humanity and go against the laws of men; but then along came our superfriends, to purge, cleanse, and purify the world. This was known as the "comic world".

As we grew older we hoped that we would someday be great heroes like our superfriends; to uphold freedom and justice for all . . . But then slowly we found ourselves drifting out of our "comic world", and into another world . . . A world so immense and perplexing that, at first, we thought it was a mere illusion. Now we can plainly see that it is real. Yes, very real. We've felt the pain and sorrow that comes with living in this world today. We've said goodbye to our "comic world" and entered into another world. A world which sometimes seems so incomplete without our superfriends of our "comic world" . . .

Where are you, Popeye? Come — let us have a taste of your spinach. We need it to give us strength and courage to face up to the reality in this crude, uncertain world of ours.

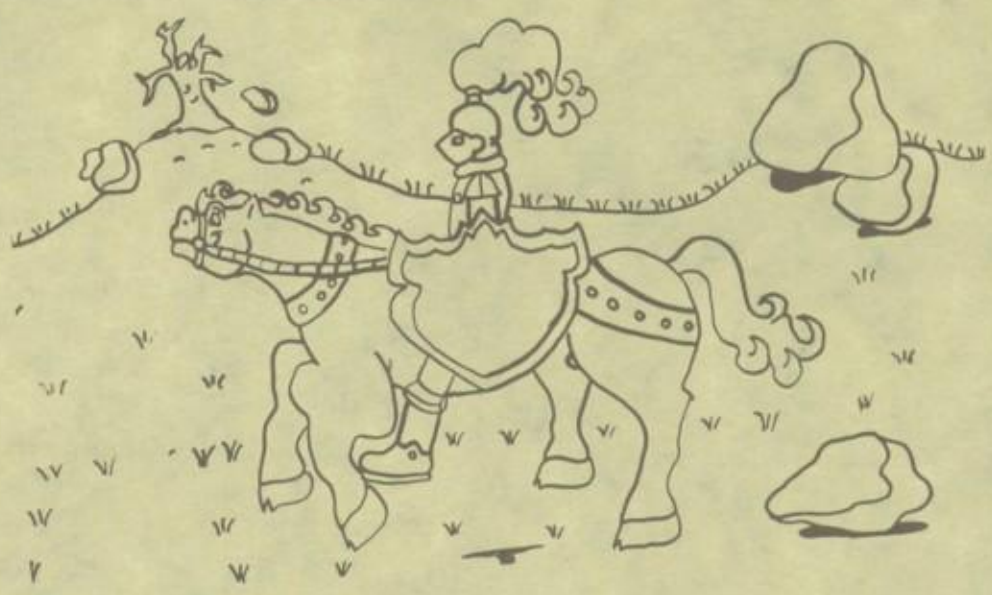
Where are you, Man of Steel? We need your great power to keep us pushing forward until we've reached our goals. We need your great power to help us resist the powers of evil which seek to destroy us.

Where are you, Caped Crusaders? We need your tact and skills to uplift us whenever we find ourselves heading toward the pits of defeat.

Where are you, Dick Tracy baby? We need your keen perception to destinguish between those who may seek to deceive us, and those who mean well toward us.

Oh, superheroes of the "comic world", we need you here today. Come forth from your "comic world"; the "real world" needs you now !!

YEARBOOK STAFF
CLASS OF 1976



The Class of 1976 was the first real hi-tech graduating class. Some of the innovations that occurred during the school year, were a device to tape programs at home (later to be known as VCR's), and sound and picture disc's (presently known as Compact Digital Discs and the now defunct Lazer Discs, respectively).

Some of the new shows presented on Broadway during the school year were "The Wiz" and the still running "A Chorus Line".

As students from Lane were preparing to graduate, riots by the black majority against the white minority in Soweto, South Africa, broke out. The problems within South Africa are still present today.

Lane's Girl's Basketball Team (right), which was a new addition to the girls interscholastic activities, managed to hustle its way to an 8-4 season. The combined efforts of the girls made them fore-runners in the first-year teams division.

The Girl's Track and Field team (left) was organized in the Spring semester of 1973 because of the vast interest aroused by the phyical fitness craze. As a result of many long hours of practice and work, the girls had a winning season during the 1974-75 school year.

MEMORIES

Four long years!
Would you believe it?
Four years in the middle of a cemetery and we're still alive!
We've been through more than 6000 classes.
12,000 times we've dragged our rear ends across benches and desks!
We were the 'post-Riot' Freshmen.
We lived with rumors and stories of the past . . .
tales of blood and burning.
Remember the O.J.?
How about the fire on the fourth floor?
Larry Williams and his 'Models'?
And what about the 'Great Drug Raid'?
We did the 'BUMP' and listened to Gladys Knight and the Pips.
We were Watergate juniors and Energy Crisis seniors
And tomorrow . . . tomorrow . . . tomorrow . . .

NOTES FROM THE CLASS OF '74

HAUNTING THOUGHTS

As I look back on the marks that I've made
I find that their value is low.
The chances I took although some of them paid
Have left me with no place to go.

I've given all I could from inside of me
With hopes of respect in return.
Thinking that what I want is to live free
Finding I have a lot to learn.

I've been trying to do all the right things
Or at least the things I've been taught.
But when I analyze all that it brings,
I know that my heart should have fought.

I've been caught between the real and unreal,
Not sure if that's how I should be.
Since all that I have is what I think and feel,
I'll have to be proud to be me.

SOMEONE SPECIAL

You can't tell me that I ain't someone special,
I may not sew good enough to make my clothes, but
I can sew buttons on my clothes when I need them.
I may not cook like Betty Crocker,
but when I'm hungry
I can make a peanut butter sandwich just as fast as anyone else.
I may not be #1 in my grades,
but
I get over with my 65's and 70's.
There is no one else like me.
My name may not be rare,
but it's mine and ain't no one and nobody I'd rather be than me.

THE OVERCOAT OF THE SOUL

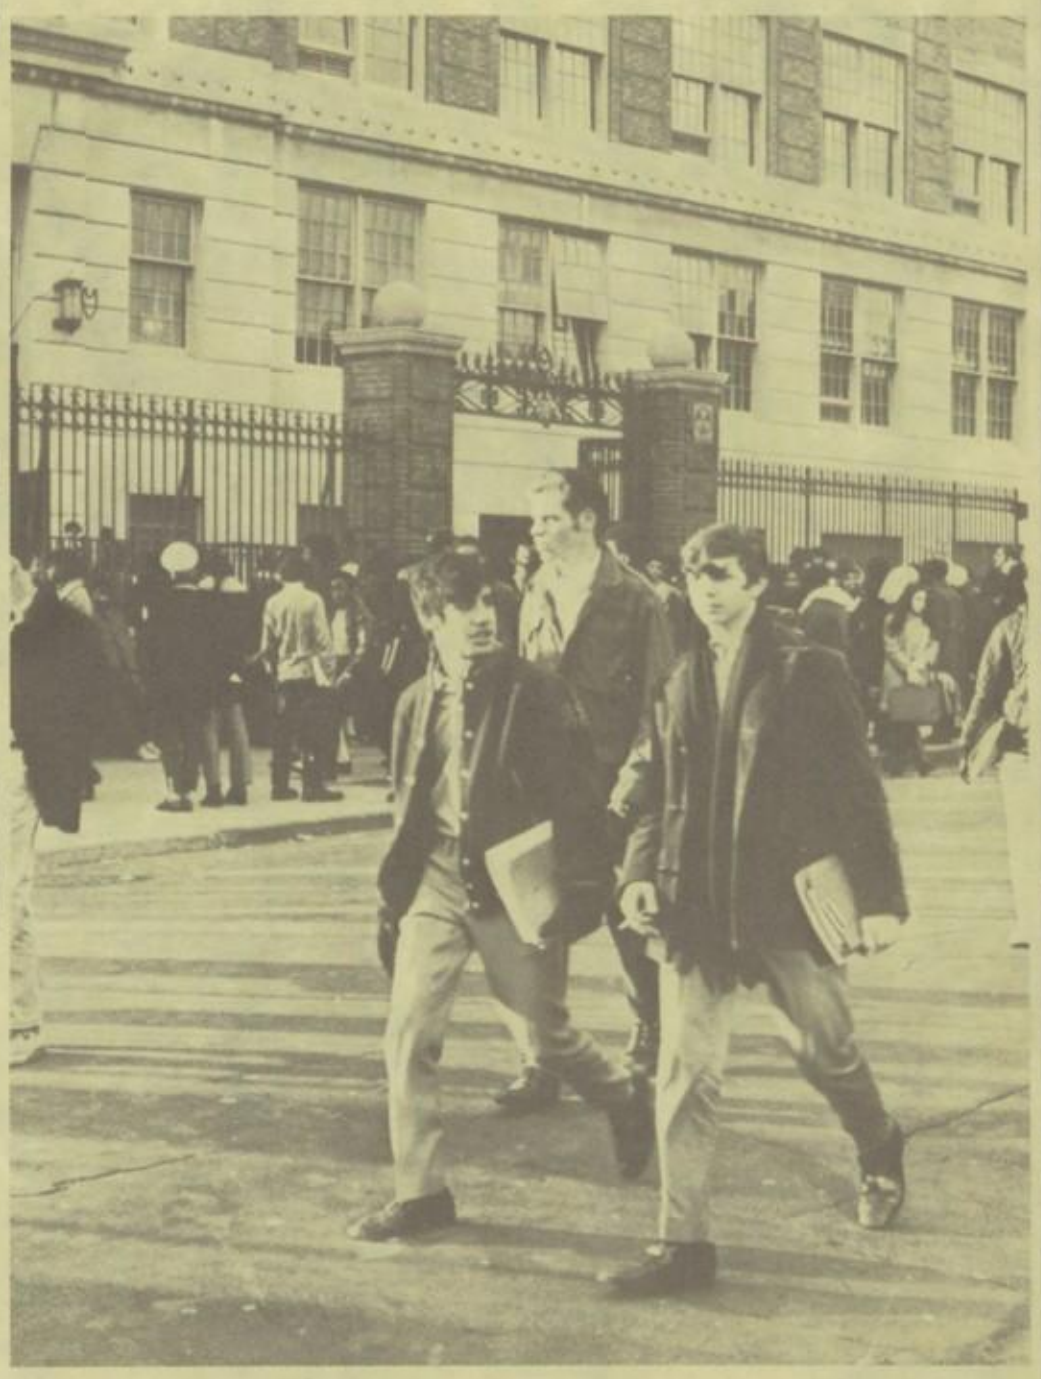
Pride is the overcoat of the soul.
The warm fur lining of accomplishment protects the spirit from the winter of despair and ignorance.
But wearing this coat of pride during too many summers of accomplishment makes it heavy with snobbery and egotism.
And without proper use, the coat becomes worn and it will die in the closet of humiliation.

1972

On September 9, 1971, as Lane seniors were already looking forward to graduation in June of '72, inmates took over the Attica State Prison in upstate New York.

When June finally came, a scandal rocked the government. On June 17, 1972, five agents of President Nixon were found burglarizing the Watergate office building. This was the start of much more to come.

1971



During the 1970-71 school year, the Supreme Court changed the national voting age to 18 in Federal Elections. This was a direct result of the social pressures and changes evident during the early '70's. Fashion-wise, 1971 was a year of "anything goes". A wave of blue denim hit all forms of American design. And, tie-dyed clothes were all the rage.

1970

ODE TO REVOLUTION

"It's time again to rise again!"
Cried the weary crowd.
Thought the deaf man to himself,
"They're screaming kind of loud."

Excitement kissed the townfolk,
And made the people buzz.
The cripple was the first to stand,
Excited as he was.

There came a murmur from behind.
"People, follow me,"
Said the blind man to the townsfolk,
Thinking he could see.

One man was picked to roam the Earth
To gather more recruits
And spread the word of revolution.
Chosen was the mute.

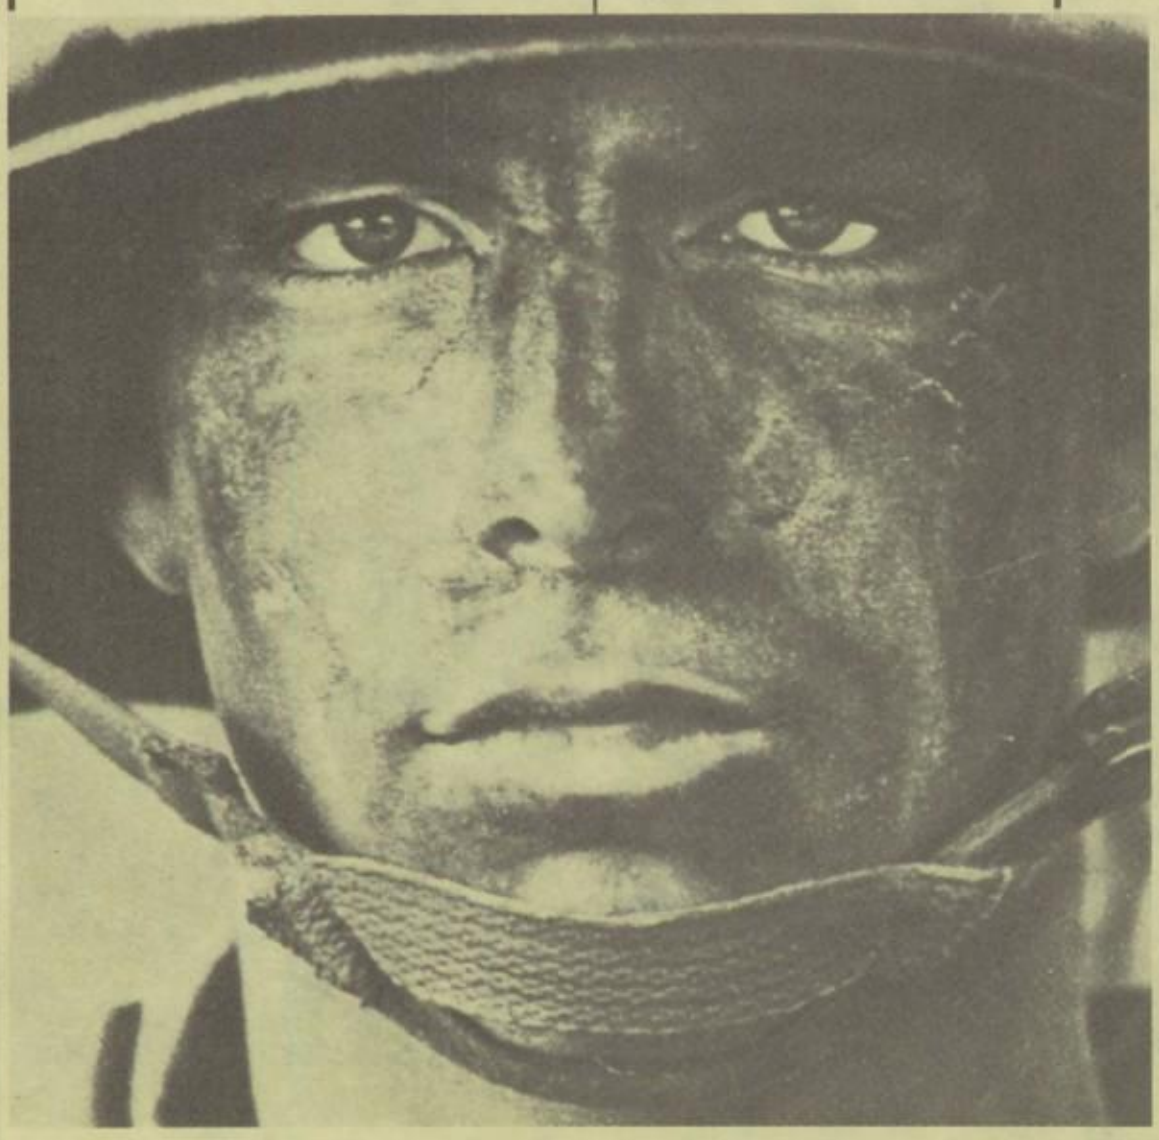
Roman Yasiejko

Opening up the turbulent '70's, 1970 is a year worthy of reflection . . .

Although the deadline for desegregation in public schools, set by the Supreme Court, was February 1, Lane was ahead of schedule by becoming an ethnicly mixed school during the '60's.

After its success in the '60's, the space program entered the '70's by launching Apollo 13 on April 11.

In the early '70's, television went through changes that would affect the future of broadcasting. Cable had burst onto the scene, and social change forced programming to change. One of the most popular shows of 1970 was "The Bill Cosby Show".



PEACE

Cannot this bitter hatred
Cease to exist in men's minds?
Let not the heavy burden sway.
Stay fast, for peace shall find her way.
Stay clear, of the infamous burdens of war.
What are we fighting for?

Let not our world to destruction fall.
Fear not, for man shall n'ver declare
That peace shall end a dying cause,
That the world shall not end in a deadly pause.
Oh peace, our destiny to you we owe.
Oh peace, your goodness unto us bestow.

Jimmy Coley

"SIR, MY MEN REFUSE TO GO!"

"I am sorry, sir,
My men refuse to go.
I have pleaded, sir,
But they still tell me no.

I think they understand, sir,
What it means to disobey.
I think they want to live, sir,
To see the break of day.

I think they have grown weary, sir,
Of all this blood and gore.
I think they've had enough, sir,
Of this God forsaken war.

They feel they're in danger, sir,
Of annihilation.
They do not want to die, sir,
For some other nation.

Do not call them cowards, sir,
They're not afraid of death.
If you'll only ask them, sir,
They'll give you their last breath.

I think I see them stirring, sir,
To their patriotic chore.
I think I see them crying, sir,
We are marching back to war!"
Roman Yasiejko

BEGINNINGS AND ENDINGS DURING THE 1970'S

In the late '70's, the student productions, known as Sing's began.

This sight was becoming less common as the '70's progressed; not as many troops were present in Vietnam.

These were some of the angry faces seen within the early '70's. The face of protest was well known in this time period.

Bill Graham was a popular face in the '70's. Producing concert tours for the 'hip' music groups of the time, Bill Graham became just as well known as those groups.

Most memorable occurrence, activity, or event for teachers at Lane:
"Baby Day riots - Race riots on Halloween. Students were hurt."
James Baumann.

"Fire 1969 - Evacuate the building (3rd & 4th floor lockers)."
Larry DeFrancis

CHILD

Joy, happiness, — words of expression.
Almost didn't make it.
After 3 weeks overdue,
He finally came.
The little Angel.
Warm his bottle - use your wrist.
Change his diaper - use gloves.
You never dreamed such a little fellow
Could cause such trouble.
Now in school, progressing rapidly.
You weren't that tall at that age - were you?
Look at those good marks.
You didn't get those kinds of marks - did you?
He's got a girl now.
Pretty little thing.
You wish that they had girls like that when You were young.
He goes out now - ties his own shoelaces.
My God, how he grows.
Little baby now shaves, even nicked himself.
What a big boy - he got his own bandage.
Pretty soon he'll be graduating - maybe marrying.
Wonder if he'll invite his father?
"We're in the army now"
Cries my little boy.
He was drafted last month.
I wonder if I should send Him any cookies?
After all, they don't feed him very well
In the army.
They say the army makes a man out of a boy.
Not with my little boy.

Paul Tretiak

Most memorable occurrence, activity, or event during your years at Lane: "October riots - and after the riot school was put together nicely. It became much more peaceful."
Martha Dacher

"CAROLYN AND JOHN"
When we walked in the park
I saw the leaf trembling
On a branch above us.
It was more beautiful,
With its scarlet veins of Autumn, than any of Its sisters. With a sigh
The wind let it drift down
To rest upon our bench.
You laughed so gently, and Curled your fingers in mine.
This was love, and the world,
I think knew our secrets.
That Sunday at the beach
The gulls winged to the shore,
Gliding gracefully as Prima Ballerinas
In white satin slippers.
We collected shells and
You kissed me softly on My cold, wind-bitten cheek.
As the waves stole the land
We whispered our secrets.

REMEMBRANCES

Walking through the halls in my senior year, I think back to the days at Lane when I entered as a sophomore - scared. It was like a dream, for I had heard so much about the school and I was finally a part of it. I can remember my first days in the lunchroom asking the prices of food and finding someone I knew to eat with. I have fond memories of being accepted in the school play, attending my first basketball game, getting a job as a secretary and being accepted into the leadership class. The days flew by - I was a junior! It was still strange and frightening, but I became more acquainted with the school and I knew more people. I remember I was nervous taking the SAT's or upon hearing the word COLLEGE. Time again went fast, and I was at the top, a senior. Not strange, but afraid of the realization that I will leave Lane as a graduate, and return only as a visitor. I'll always remember my senior activities, especially the prom. Along with the rest of the fond memories Lane holds, I will remember the knowledge gained at Lane. Marc Nachemin

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

To Mr. Cohen, a fine mathematician, we leave a firm proof and no supposition.
To Mr. Gentwerger, we leave with ease, a class of typists who don't peek at the keys.
To Mr. Siracusa, who's really hip, a mini lab coat that's sure to fit.

1967

Senior year is something you have to experience to know what it's like. A senior creates a world in which he can lose himself in a dream of what tomorrow will bring. He has reached the top at last and no one can take it away. Yet, after all the excitement has faded, senior year becomes a reality and a small part of his life is over. The friends he made in the past four years go their own ways, each to his chosen field of endeavor. Some will remain close, while others become only fond memories.

A promise of new enjoyment looms in front of him, ready to greet him as he leaves high school behind. In the years to come, he will look back and remember the fun and pain in those four years, and he will be a little wiser and a little happier knowing that he wouldn't have missed one minute of it for the world.

Marcia Ackroff

IN DEFENSE OF TELEVISION

There's nothing wrong with television that I can plainly see.
Its shows are educational and that's good enough for me.
Yet my teachers like to argue and call it a "boob tube;"
There's nothing good about it-a fact that isn't proved.
For instance, did ya know, Martians call their own cows "Glicks"?
And on the planet Neptune, earth people are never sick?
And IIIya Kuryakin has explained to us more than twice
How easily a computer is tuned in on a pair of loaded dice.
We learn from our hero, Batman, that right is never wrong,
And then we join in singing his rousing theme song.
There's nothing quite so stimulating as watching Maxwell Smart,
To learn how bad guys are thwarted in every villainous art.
When we want some real live culture we can simply sit and see
A ballet or an opera or a concert on T.V.
Though teachers say it's a waste of time,
They seem to watch enough.
So if T.V.'s good enough for them, it's good enough for us!

Karen Rilling

CHOOSING AN ELECTIVE

Hooray! I have a period free!
Should I waste it or use it wisely?
I could always take art for a credit or a half,
Or waste my time with some sort of Math.
There's music, which is really a waste,
Those songs they teach you have no taste.
Spanish, French, or Latin are on the second floor,
But after a while, they become a bore.
Another period of lunch is very enticing,
Especially the vanilla cake with chocolate icing.
I've come to a decision; eighth period I will keep,
Instead of taking courses, I'll go home and sleep!

Marc Nachemin

LETS GO TEAM!

DAD FORGAVE ME ONCE

Dad forgave me the first time
He saw a mark in red.
Told me watching TV wouldn't help,
I ought to be studying instead.
I promised with all my heart
To do the best I could,
But Tuesday Night At The Movies
Was starring Natalie Wood.
So Wednesday night I sat down
And, while diligently at work,
Someone just had to tell me
I was missing Amos Burke!
Now, Daddy dear, I'm sorry.
I tried harder than you know,
But it seems I simply can't resist
Seeing the Dean Martin Show.
Can someone tell me what to do?
I'm really beginning to fidget.
Tomorrows test is on MacBeth
Tonights the night for Gidget.
It's times like this I get so angry
I really want to cry.
Yet even that I must put off
Till after I've seen I Spy.
Now Dad says no more television
And that's the end of me.
I think I'll go join the crew
Of Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea.

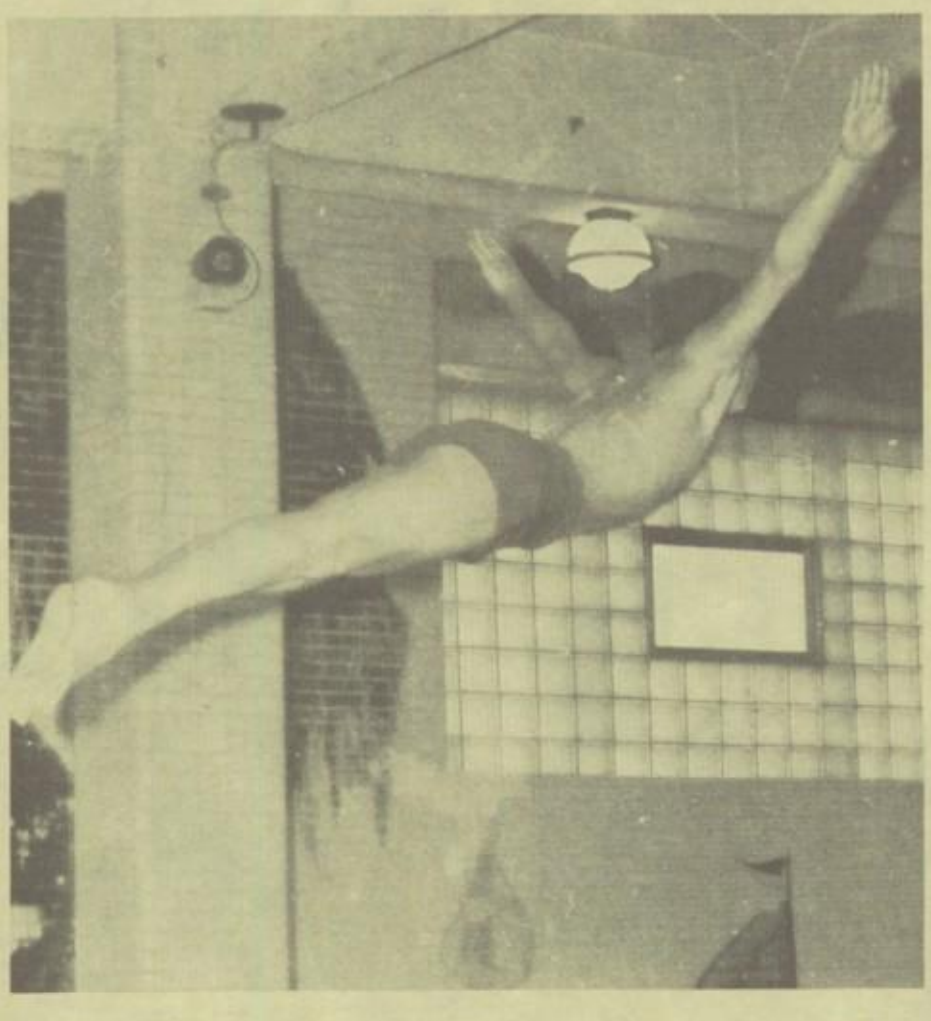
1965



With a balanced attack, our basketball team again captured the Queens championship. Small, but rugged, such capable players as Nat Miller and Bob Colon, helped to spark the Lane juggernaut over the taller and heavier squads of the division. Lane's swimming team splashed its way to a 7-3 record, its best effort of recent years. Paced by the mighty Morris brothers, the team succeeded in defeating the two old rivals, Adams and Jamaica. DO YOU KNOW THIS PERSON?

He returned to Lane to become one of our favorite Math teachers . . John Pallone.
REFLECTIONS By Edith Nurbin
A cry, a whine, a gurgling sound . . and each new day a baby's born . . . a bloom, a leaf, a fruit falls hard . . . and each new fruit that blossoms is life as it will pass . . . but suddenly there comes a scream . . . for beauty never lasts.

Here it is, 3 o'clock Friday and you've got to rush like a maniac to get a good seat for the basketball game. You're crushed to a moist pole in the mass waiting to get in, until finally you ooze through the door. Hershey bar clutched in your fist, you've somehow gotten a seat right up front for the last home game.

The teams are trotting out and you scream and cheer with everyone else. Flashes of boosters, beanies, basketballs, and cheerleaders whirl in a maelstrom until you hear the whistle that starts the game. The opposing team gets the ball. They dribble to the left, to the right, back to the left: somehow the ball disappears. The Hershey bar clutched tightly in your hand begins to melt.

I WANDERED LONELY AS A CLOD

Freshman
I wandered lonely as a clod,
They called me Freshie, I felt odd.
Okay, laugh but it's not much fun
When you can't find room 2A21!
Sophomore
I sliced a frog, removed his liver,
My stomach turned, I gave a shiver.
Learned Bio 1 from A to Z
Failed the regents with a 53!
Junior
They said this year is really rough,
English, Math, History, Chem-just wasn't enough.
To get me into that P.G. 7
I need credits-at least eleven!
Senior
Hey, look at me, I really rate!
Finally a senior, P.G.8
Now off to work or on to college
Here's to Lane and all my knowledge!

John Fitzgerald Kennedy

"Mr. McSloy, what is your most memorable experience at Lane?"

"When my boss came to my class in 1964 and said he would take over, I asked why, and I was told that my wife was having a baby."
Mr. Paul McSloy

"On the afternoon of the death of President Kennedy, Mr. O'Connell announced the news over the P.A., indicating that the flag was being lowered and that the school would be dismissed early. Students were crying; it was during the 5th period. There was total quiet in the building. The flag was at half mast. I can never recall seeing or hearing Dexter Court so quiet. It seemed as if no one was talking, but just walking slowly to their bus or train."

Foremost in our memories of the past year, is the powerful Soccer Team. In its initial season of competition, our boosters showed tremendous sportsmanship, ability, and consistency. The year 1962 was a good year for Lane bowling. Not only did Coach Lawrence Rubinow's boys capture their division title for the fifth time in the seven years of its existence; they rolled all the way to the elusive city championships in which they triumphed. And then, to add the crowning touch, Richard Achillo, one of the starters, won the PSAL Individual Bowling Championship which virtually makes him the top bowler in the PSAL. By Jeff Stern

OUR CLASS

There was a Senior Day last year and there will be another one next year. But this was OUR year. We attended senior assemblies, exchanged senior pictures, and wore the senior buttons. Every class before us feels that special ecstasy and now we feel the same ecstasy. Yet, there was something different in the class of '62 . . . .it was our class. By Evelyn Feldschuh

SOCIAL DANCE CLASS

FROM THE BIG APPLE TO THE TWIST

A year and a half after "the twist" craze, newspapers across the country created a violent reaction over a small night spot, the Peppermint Lounge, on Manhattan's 45th Street. Hundreds flocked to the overcrowded club to twist to the sounds of Joey Dee and the Starliters. For the young, this new craze may be the answer to JFK's call for a physical fitness program. THE YEARS BETWEEN

He worries now more than anyone else, but he's happy-go-lucky too. He's aggressive, yet he's shy. He likes Bach, he likes Elvis. He's the average normal American teenager of the Space Age.

He cheers for his school teams until he becomes hoarse, he roars the loudest at a good joke, he cries the hardest during a sad picture. He has a real zest for life for his fellow human beings.

A teenager's life isn't all pink cotton candy and ice cream cones, as some adults suggest. It is a time for experiencing the heartaches and griefs of life as well as its joys. Adolescence is the time of decisions. Whether you wear the sophisticate pink or the frilly dress can be a question having far-reaching consequences for a teenager. Whether to date this boy or that one; go steady now or wait; attend college or venture into business.

A teenager's life can be compared to a graph which includes many high points as well as low ones. Somehow, though, the memory of the high points seems to eradicate the agonies of the low ones, leaving the teenage years as the so called "best" years of our lives.

REMINISCENCE

Graduation was over, the people filed out;
Parents kissing students were milling about;
Relatives beaming, robes pell-mell,-
I slipped away quietly for my last farewell.
The halls were silent, my footsteps resounded;
As I wandered along, my memories rebounded;
My official room's here, and here my seat;
Is that the patter of running feet
Of students trying to beat the bell?
Yes, yes, there goes that daily "death knell";
Now school begins for another day
And I shall relive it if I may:
This is the time for those who shirk
The dismal chore of doing homework.
The girls love to gossip while fixing their hair;
Here intimate secrets are often laid bare!
Then three chimes are heard and the P.A. goes on,
Announces the news every Laneite should know:
Our track team won; in golf, a good show.
The Bio club meets this afternoon,
And a warning to all: report cards come soon!
The first period class is always the worst;
I'm really half conscious, for sleep I thirst.
In my second class, I'm much more awake;
That teacher is wary and it's hard to fake!
And so it proceeds through the endless day:
Reading and writing and learning away!
Learning to say "It is I", and not "me";
Learning our formulas in geometry;
Learning fuctions of the heart, the liver, the spleen;
Learning in Physics why light can be seen;
Learning to swim and to do exercises;
Mixing two test tubes-oh! what surprises!
Learning to write in flawless shorthand;
Learning to sing or play in the band;
Homework, homework, test upon test,
Hopefully striving to do our best,
Until three o'clock comes rolling by
And homeward the students seem to fly,
Grateful that one more day is through,
Anticipating the end in view.
But we who have now reached the last,
Are unhappy our high school days are past.

BASKETBALL
The starting team consisted of seniors Joseph Falvey and John Dorsey, with juniors Randy Richardson, Clyde Felder and Glen Davis. Other ball players, James Taylor, Charles Hellman, and 6′ foot 7″ Gerald Davis who were comparatively inactive this season, will probably spark next year's team.

THE DECADE

The sixties were years overflowing with events that will always be remembered. Nationally, the tragic assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy touched everyone's lives. The Vietnam War caused unrest among the youth of the country. There was an awakening to the existence of nuclear weapons; there were many demonstrations against them. Vietnam and many other issues were held to show that peace was important. Neil Armstrong became the first man to walk on the moon in July of 1969. He immortalized the quote, "One small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." Martin Luther King, Jr. fought for the rights of blacks and the cost was his life.

Statewide, Woodstock was held upstate and became the biggest gathering of teens for a common cause. The Beatles' first concert was held in New York City. Their singing had everyone caught up in music. Clothes included mini-skirts, and bell-bottom jeans. Flowers were the symbol of the times. Peace seemed to be everyone's goal.

Citywide events included the World's Fair in Flushing Meadow Park (1964-1965). This event brought many people from all over the world to our neighborhood. The Mets won the World Series for the first time in 1969.

The sixties had people waking up to what the world was about.

At Lane, in the sixties, the environment was full of tension. This lasted for about three years. There was alot of racial turmoil which caused much disruption in the school. Fortunately, the students finally began to accept one another for who and what they were.

WANDERLUST

I oft' times I wish I were a lad
And could at leisure be.
I'd throw my tiresome books away
And scurry off to sea.
I'd hurry off to lands afar
To places read in story.
With Robin Hood and Ivanhoe
I'd be in all my glory.
I'd travel first to sunny Spain
To be a matador;
Then, maybe, deep in Africa,
I'd bag wild game galore.
And back across the sea I'd sail
To gay and charming France.
I'd climb the Eiffel Tower,
Have parties and romance.
Next I'd scale the lofty Alps,
Of Switzerland, so cold.
Perhaps far in the Klondikes
I'd pan a little gold.
And when at last I'd had my fill,
Then homeward bound I'd be,
To pick up right where I'd left off
In my daydreams of the sea.

SWIMMING TEAM

The fortunes of the boys who swim for Lane look brighter than they did at the end of last season. Although they finished with a losing record, the actual proof of their great potential came to light in a recent match between Richmond Hill and Lane when they won by a score of 46-24. Coach "Doc" Schoening's swimming team consisted of many seniors this season: Robert Becht, John Caleca, Leonard Ferstler, Barry Gitlin, Ernest Getzoni, Richard Jaworski, Edward Kropp, Herman Levyne, Martin Motherway, and Edward Smith. We hope the new team will be as successful as these boys have been.

HANDBALL TEAM

The Lane Handball Team, coached by Mr. Joseph Calia, came out last spring with another fine group, which finished second in the South Queens division of the P.S.A.L. Many of the players are returning this year, and a combination of experience and ability will give Mr. Calia's boys an excellent chance of attaining the division title. A large number of Seniors hold the hopes of the team this year. These boys are: Fred Corb, Joseph DeRosa, Richard Horvath, Robert Chernak, Irwin Cohen, Steve D'Antoni and Howard Davidowitz.

LANE REPORTER

After much interviewing, picture-taking, proofreading, eradicating, and rewriting, the Lane Reporter finally makes its way, nine times annually, into the hands of Lane students. The paper reports dances, contests, senior activities, assembly programs, and all other events currently being discussed in any corner of the school. It also contains reviews of books, plays, movies, and T.V. programs of interest to the students.

The responsibility of gathering and bringing events at Lane to everyone is entrusted to those reporters who have a "nose" for news. These students, chosen from journalism classes, have the opportunity to meet and interview students and teachers, and occasionally celebrities. They must be willing to spend long hours in proofreading and headline-creating, to come to school 8:20 on distribution days and stay until 4:30 on days the stories are sent to the printer — memorable occasions not soon forgotten by the Reporter Staff. The staff, under the auspices of Miss Catherine Cahill, is headed by a group of Student Editors-Joseph Catenello, Editor in Chief, Marilyn Mungo, News Editor, Ester Bromfeld, Features Editor, and Selma Schwartz, Art Editor.

INTERCULTURAL CLUB

The Intercultural club was organized in order to encourage meetings of students of all nationalities, religions, and races. It was the hope of faculty and administration that the club would increase understanding and brotherhood here at Lane.

Since its inauguration, the club has had speakers from the National Advancement of Colored People, the State Commission Against Discrimination, and the Hebrew Culture Society.

To help them enlarge their knowledge of foreign foods, the club arranges visits to different restaurants.

In all of these ways, the Intercultural Club is instrumental in promoting brotherhood here at Lane.

SENIOR DAY

Strains of "London Bridge" and "Ring Around The Rosie" echoed through the corridors of Lane High School on the untraditionally sunny Senior Day of October 25. These strident screeches were the voices of many giddy Seniors, who where gaily having their last fling at childhood before entering the world of responsibility and adulthood.

A cry disrupts the morning hush,
The earliest riser sees
That his fellow Lane Knights waken fast,
"Attention-five at the door."

And so, when three o'clock arrives,
Ah! What a wondrous sight!
Assembled in the lists to watch
Each Lady with her Knight.

A shout is heard around the hall;
The Lane Knights, in Blue and Grey.
Fiercely flashing shining swords,
To the arena have made their way.

The opposing team is ready too;
They hail from a foreign land,
Swift and eager - ready to fight,
They wait for the starting command.

A bell now sounds - the joust is on!
And ready to defy,
The Lane Knights brandish sharpened swords,
Around them, spectators cry;

"Come on, Lane Knights, if Knights you are,
FIGHT --- to the end, boys - fight!"
With faces grim and courageous hearts,
They struggle til victory's in sight.

And so, when the tournament's over,
We congratulate our men——
Through all they've emerged victorious—
The Lane Knights have done it again!!

THE AFTERMATH OF A CHEM TEST

At the sound of the bell, I rushed out of the room;
My mind was dead, as dead
as a tomb.
"Boy, what a chem. test!" I said with shaking hand;
"I wrote some answers I hope he'll understand.
I'm just as taut as a piece of stretched rope;
To cut my next class is my only hope."
When the next period was about to begin,
I found a vacant office and walked right in.
Then I felt pangs of conscience —
"I'll go to my class,
But how in the world will I get a late pass?"
Suddenly, I heard a voice filled with spleen,
"You by the window, get down to the dean!"
I shivered and shook,
I cowered like a cur,
I turned around slowly,
"G-good morning Sir."
"Good morning, yourself-get what I mean?
Heard what I said? Get down to the Dean!"
The office was crowded, the faces were stern;
I got on line and waited my turn.
Then my chem teacher entered to increase my distress.
"It was your test that got me into this mess!"
I fully explained the entire situation,
How I cut because of my agitation.
He turned to me in complete dismay,
And said "Friend, you're in a pretty sad way."
Now I know my chemistry,
it's really a cinch.
Of that textbook I know every single inch.
It was very simple, I won't hesitate to mention,
For I learned my chem serving two weeks' detention.

SENIOR DAY

Walking through Lane one cold day in the latter part of October, one would think that the "Lollipop Set" had taken over. The truth of the matter is that the Senior Class was having its last fling at childhood. On this day, the sophisticated Senior put aside his usual school dress, and adopted one similar to his early school days.

In the classrooms where work went on, antics like the pulling of pig-tails and the sharing of lolli-pops could still be seen. A dance in the girls' gym after school where prizes were awarded to the cutest single, twin and triplet costumes, and dancing and games prevailed.

The day finally ended, but for each Senior, knowing that a smile will flicker when he recalls his "Senior Day" at Lane, a happy experience was recorded.

LOCKER ROOM STRUGGLES

As I fondly look back to my high school days, I vividly and nostalgically recall the hectic moments I spent in the locker room.

Every period, about two hundred screaming girls would run through corridors, rush down staircases, and pour through the locker room doors while they untied shoe laces, unbuckled belts, and unfastened buttons. At the same time two hundred hysterical girls would be leaving the locker room as they made last minute futile attempts to twist a skirt into place, put on some lipstick, comb their hair, and in short, try to do in three seconds what normally takes a couple of hours.

Once inside, I would wind my way through the aisle of lockers and turn into a row where my locker was situated. There I would climb over the first girl who was frantically struggling with a zipper and then jump over a pile of her books. Almost always there would be a few articles of clothing on the floor and I always landed on them, while the infuriated owner looked at me with an icy stare. The next steps were opening a stubborn combination lock, quickly changing into my gymsuit, putting my books into the locker, and shutting it with a few bangs. All around me girls continued to change. A scene that always amused me was the girl who was trying to hide a sweater or blouse under a gymsuit, or a rolled stocking under a sock. I could never quite figure out why in heaven's name she didn't remove these items while in the process of changing, since she always received a demerit for wearing them under her gymsuit anyway. Then up to gym, a class that I always enjoyed except on the day we had dancing. After a fleeting forty minutes, it was back to the helter-skelter of the locker room where the moaning, grunting, and groaning girls would repeat the same process, reversed this time, until they emerged disheveled, in a race to get to the next class before the bell.

SCHOOL OF THE FUTURE

Many students have probably wondered what school life in the future will be like. According to recent reports, school in the future years will be much more pleasant to attend, because of the many inventions which will be created to make education less taxing on the student. Students will never again have to worry about being late for school, for supersonic walking shoes will get the pupils to school in a few minutes and will eliminate the hectic morning rush.

Each school will be equipped with escalators so there will be no more huffing and puffing up four flights of stairs. Classrooms will be large and airy with luxurious carpets covering the floors. Students will sit on soft silken couches, each one equipped with a private telephone. Each couch will be supplied with an electronic eye television set which broadcasts lessons from the Board of Education Studio.

SENIORS' BIG QUESTION

For days she gathered courage;
She needed every drop;
For once she started going
She knew she dared not stop.

She planned and hoped and worried
And wished on dreams galore,
And even prayed to heaven
With her knees upon the floor.

But finally she did it
And joyous was her face;
Her dream had been accomplished
By the aid of God's own grace.

What am I wasting words on?
You needn't ask your mom;
A girl just asked her fellow
To attend the Senior Prom.

WITH NO REGRETS

The days that are left are few for me;
I'm unhappy? I couldn't be!
I who have always hated school,
Trying my best to evade every rule,
Why should my heart be feeling pain
Just when I'm about to be leaving Lane?
Why look back when I'm almost there —
Could it be I'm learning to care?
"No, this is foolish, I must not forget
I'm leaving school with no regret.

LOOKING BACKWARD

Now that the time is almost near when we shall walk out of Lane's doors permanently, how many of us look back upon the days when we were just frightened little freshmen entering Lane for the first time?

As we glance at a new student, we can recall the times when we had wished we hadn't come to Lane. Or maybe we had difficulty becoming adjusted to the size of Lane and often walked around the building twice before finding the room we wanted. But all that seemed to change gradually until we now regard Lane as our second home and we can remember those little things that seemed important or embarrassing then, and smile.

But the best memories are those that have occurred and will yet occur during our senior year-SENIOR DAY-those special days when we recieved our long-awaited senior buttons, and either lost them the next day or painted them the first chance we got-the day we got our horrible (or so we thought) picture prints from the photographers-the morning we put on our much treasured rings that we admired and shined for a week-and naturally those events such to come, the prom and commencement. I doubt if it will take much effort for us to look fondly back and recall many things that helped to make our high school days the happiest of our lives.

BASEBALL TEAM

The Knights baseball team, coached by Mr. Robert Berman is one of the major teams at Lane. After an excellent season last year, in which they tied for first place with Far Rockaway in South Queens P.S.A.L League, by having a record of 11 wins and 3 losses, the team looks foward to a possible Divisional Championship this year. Coach Berman expects stiff competition from Adams, Van Buren, Richmond Hill, Wilson, Jackson, and Jamaica.

The starting team which consists mainly of seniors is led by captain William Milinis. Barry Pearlstein, the Knights number one pitcher who had a record of 4 wins and 2 losses last year, is looking foward to an even better season. Jack Khan, Leonard Maggio, Joseph Aragona, and Anthony Rini, all seniors, expect to bring the Knights even more glory than in the past.

BASKETBALL

In June three of the best basketball players Lane has ever seen will graduate; Richard "Chink" Gaines, Cliff Daniels, and Bob Oakes. With these fellows will go memories of thrilling home games and of championship games. Though our team never won city honors, we were rated as one of the best in the city. In the words of Coach Sam Laffel, it is summed up pretty well, "This year's team was the greatest team Lane has ever had." Many will miss those games, seeing Chink drive through for two points or seeing Cliff or Bob take a set shot and hearing the swoosh of the basket as the ball goes in. I'm sure though we will always remember those glorious games against Richmond Hill, our arch rivals, and against Newton and Forest Hills, and the Queens Championship games, in which we were beaten by those two Cinderella teams. But Chink Gaines proved that Lane has the best, when he won the All-Star Trophy this year.

The yearbook of 1953 was dedicated to all the Laneites who were fighting in Korea . . .

Man is not by nature a belligerent being but is made so by force of necessity and circumference. He will not risk his life unless the thing he risks it for is more valuable than life itself.

In Korea today men are fighting and dying to preserve freedom, the most priceless treasure we possess. It is for this reason they left home and loved ones to unsheath once more the sword of war in defense of the right, and sacrifice themselves upon the altar of liberty.

Macaulay put the sentiment far better than I can, when he said in his "Horatius " he wrote:

"To every man upon this earth,
Death cometh soon or late.
And how can man die better
Than facing fearful odds,
For the ashes of his fathers
And the temples of his gods?"

Many of us who are now graduating may, in the near future, be called upon to make the sacrifice that those in Korea are now making, but be assured that as long as others are willing to follow after and do likewise, that sacrifice is not, and will not be, in vain!

A SENIOR'S LOT

You're a senior now
No longer just a student.
Friends, teachers, everyone
Expect you to be prudent.

Time is very fleeting,
There's so much to be done.
A senior's lot is full of work,
But also full of fun.

Your emotions are so muttled,
You cannot laugh or cry,
And so you do just nothing
Except sit back and sigh.

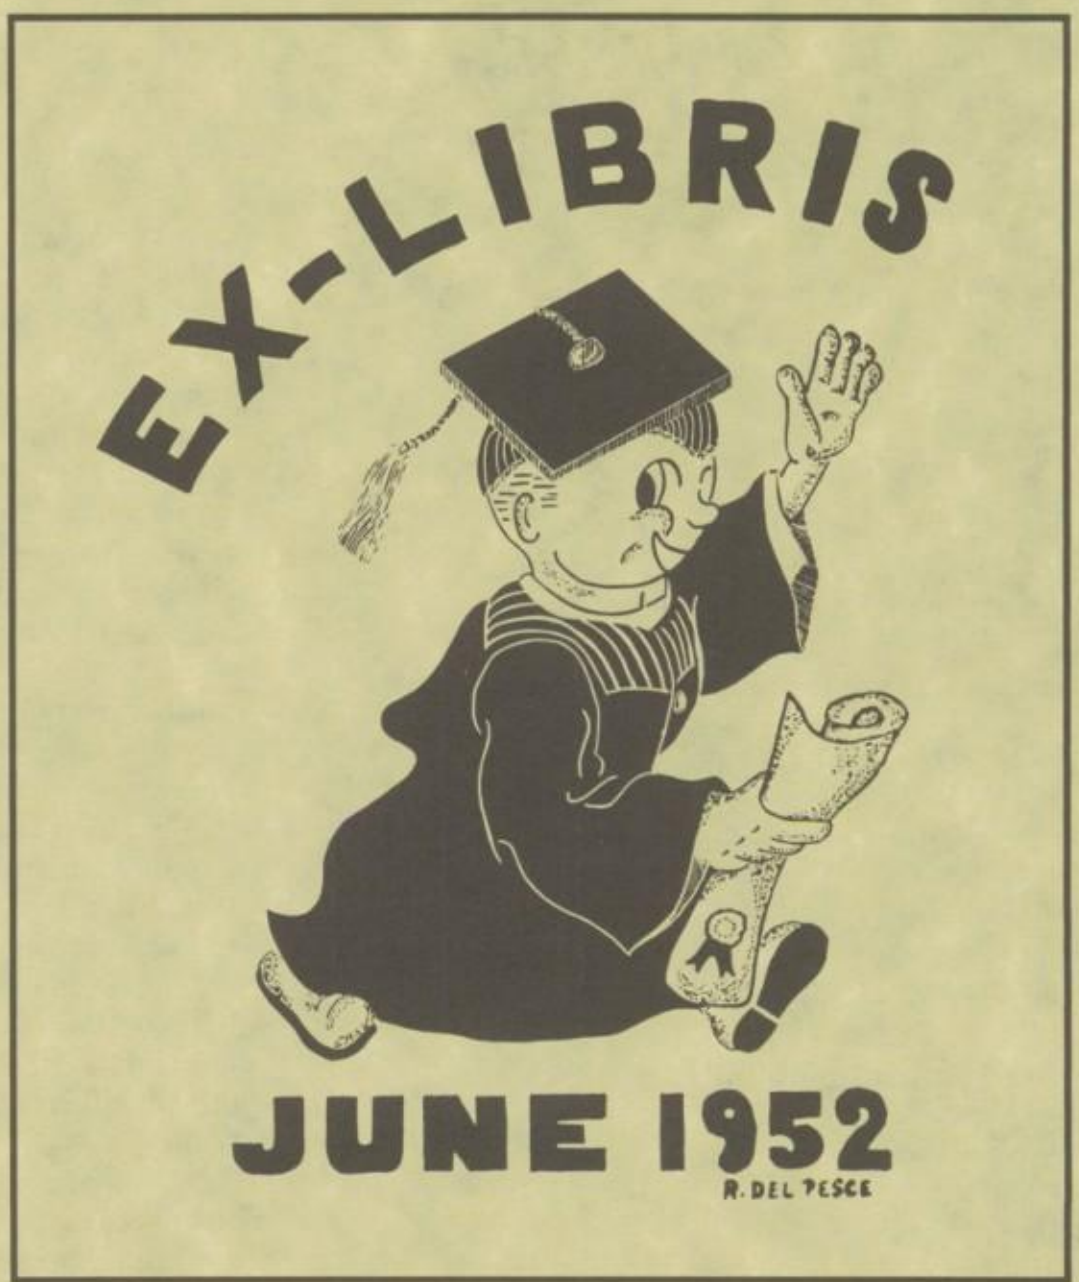
Life is oh so different!
At times you feel quite strange,
And suddenly you almost wish
The atmosphere would change.

There are things that you
remember,
There are things that you regret;
Most of all there are some things
You wish you could forget.

Life is now upon you
You have no time to think;
Your thoughts are swirling round
Still floating on a brink.

If only you could live
As once you used to do,
Before you were a Senior
Before this life so new.

Camille Galante



SENIOR

Senior-
To live and breathe the wondrous air
And marvel the jewelled host of stars . . . .
Senior-
To hold the hope of the future like a taut, singing harp string within you
And make it ring and vibrate with your every hope and dream and effort . . . .
Senior-
To feel a heady magic in every step and word;
To find adventure in each new day, and a scheme for every tomorrow . . . .
Senior-
To thrill to a rhythmic beat, to cheer a team, to live a film,
And to be Queen of Hearts in a prom gown . . . .
Senior-
To cry a little, live a lot; to quote poetry or jazz lyrics;
To change your mind, to worry about the headlines, and be tossed among the stars, or into the gloomy depths . . . .
Senior-
To dance, and weep, and sing your heart out to the heavens . . . .
And thank God for the world you live in!

Carol Valinoti

Where have the years gone?! We are now "middle aged", and memories are becoming very precious. We have witnessed so many changes since we left the security of our teen years, the flower children of the 60's, the rebellious college generations of the 70's, the electronic wizardry of the 80's. We have raised a generation of our children and are now basking in the glory of grandparenting.

Suddenly, I want very much to see again the friends of my youth, classes of 51', 52', and 53'. Let's not wait until our 50th. Let's get together now and relive the past. It's too precious to let slip by without making an effort!

To the class of '87 - A hearty congratulations. Every wish for another 50!

NONSENSE

Though sixteen lines long this jingle may be,

It says not a thing, as you soon will see;

You ought to stop now while you're still ahead,

Or soon you'll have this whole mess read.

I'm sure by now you want no more;

To read this must be an awful bore.

This stream of words I cannot abate;

You readers are in for a sorry fate.

To go so far you really are brave;

But wait, there's something that will you soon save.

To carry me away come the men in white;

(This way of ending is really trite.)

So now at last I must say goodbye;

I can only say: You read this — Why?

Peter Pfunke

FORWARD

And now that we are leaving . . . we hate to go.

When we entered Lane in the fall of 1947, we found ourselves like many, who are traveling abroad for the first time, in the midst of a strange environment.

We were amazed at the vastness of this place, and we were lonely. As the months passed, we discovered our loneliness had left us; we had captured that feeling of really belonging. We discovered other things also: the various clubs, where we met new personalities and participated in interesting activities; the faculty, who shared with us their wisdom and knowledge, always ready to give advice and counsel; the excitement of athletic contests, in which our teams both won and lost.

The time passed so swiftly, and we were Seniors. We wore our Senior buttons with pride. Excitedly we worked on Senior day costumes and planned for the prom. We studied harder and had more fun than ever before.

Now comes the realization that we must leave all of this. Graduation is the day most of us anticipated, but its coming also brings divided sentiments. It brings joy because it is one of the highlights of our lives. It brings also a tear to our eyes and an emptiness to our hearts, for now our paths will divide. Many will continue their education in the colleges and universities of the land. Some will seek their future in the business world, and others will render noble service in the armed forces of our nation.

We have come to the crossroads. It is for this reason that we should consider this book, "Senior Echoes of June 1951", as a record of a happy, successful trip. In the future, time will erase from memory many of the experiences of our high school days. It is then that we shall be able to turn through these pages, and the faces will aid us in recapturing many happy moments.

Now the journey is over, but we will never forget "Dear Old Franklin Lane" — our alma mater.

NEW YORK

New York — a great big wonderful city!
The core of the earth — the center of the world.
Streams of humanity pass through your streets,
Rushing, tumbling,
Jostling, and pushing
Their way through buses and subways.

What is New York?
New York is its people,
Its eight million inhabitants.
Black and white, Christian and Jew,
The rich, suave, the nervous debutante
Riding in sleek limousines,
The sophisticated artist
And the grocer, doctor, business man,
Worker, mechanic, and teacher.
The poor, the beggars, the wretched,
The starving, the poverty stricken.
Yes, New York envies your riches,
But the world scorns your slums.

What is New York?
New York is Times Square,
Glaring lights, blinking neon signs,
Rockfeller Center, the Staten Island Ferry;
Coney Island,
Filthy and dirty —
But a haven of joy for countless people.
The merry-go-round-the thrill of the "Cyclone,"An infinite source of diversion and amusement.
New York-a world of culture-
The Museum of Art, The New York Public Library.
Opening night of "Madame Butterfly."
And free colleges which Enable its people to reach for the stars.

New York-on your teeming shores
Stands a colossus of liberty,
The United Nations,
A beacon of light
Shining-
Shining steadily-
Bringing hope and guidance
To a troubled world.

GOODBYE, LANE

How do you say "Goodbye" to a school, a place that's been a home and a habit for four years? It doesn't have hands to shake, as teachers do. In fact, some people might even classify a school as being inanimate — but they're so wrong.

Something inanimate has no heart, and the heart of a school is constantly pulsating so that it's felt by everyone having anything to do with it. The heart of a school is unselfish for it asks nothing in return for the haven given you. All it wants is for you to do well. And when you do succeed in your chosen field it swells with pride, and everyone in the school feels the vibration of its joy.

How can you say "Goodbye" to it? Do you walk through the lunchroom in which you nearly developed the jitters waiting in line, ride the elevator on which you sneaked a lift now and then, look in at the Chem lab, study hall, gym, and all the various classrooms and just whisper "Goodbye", or do you feel that the school wants no formal farewell but modestly says, "So Long," by way of diploma and then turns its services to a new entering class, letting you know that it will always be there for you to come back to? But, as I look upon this building which I entered as an adolescent and leave as a recognized adult, I can't help murmuring, "Goodbye, Lane."

OVERALL VIEW OF THE DECADE

In 1957 it was 20 years since Lane first opened its doors to students. The yearbooks of the 50's contained alot of copy and hardly any pictures of the seniors except the graduation pictures.

The students of the 50's were dismissed at 3:00 and their advanced swim team was called "The Ospreys". From 1950 to 1953 there were no themes. Then in 1954 they started having themes in the newly titled "Echoes" yearbook. In 1954 the yearbook was dedicated to the future.

The fashion among the boys in the 50's was to be dressed in faded dungarees, sloppy type shirts, crew neck sweaters, and a cap. The fashion among girls was long poodle skirts, penny loafers, and cashmere sweaters.

"Rock -N- Roll" was in during the 50's because it changed the society and helped mold the type of music we have today. At the time parents thought this new type of music would turn their children away from the reality of life.

From this we can see that teenagers of the 50's are just like us. Let's just hope when we become parents we can understand these changes in fashion, music, and the rebellious habits of teenagers. By remembering we were once teenagers in their position we can be able to adjust to change and understand what our parents went through with us!

This quote from the 1957 yearbook explains this:

"Every generation has its craze, something that is centered permanently in a period of time, which symbolizes youth and carefree days that is cherished throughout life."

LANE 2,000 A.D.

As we wander back to our alma mater in the year 2,000 A.D., we find things changed quite a bit. As for ourselves, we are now gray and bent with age, but still brimming with vital energy (due of course, to the invigorating exercises we slaved over in Lane's gym over fifty years ago). We stroll down Jamaica Avenue to the dear old building and are almost blinded by a streak of flashing light. Lane no longer appears a looming red brick building, but now it is constructed entirely of shimmering translucent glass. The field in front of the school has been picturesquely converted into a small national park resplendent with brightly hued flora and trees dedicated to famous former Laneites. As we approach the huge glass doors which replace the old heavy brass ones, they open automatically because they are equipped with electric eyes. Once inside, we find a change which had long been campaigned for by our generation-escalators replacing stairs. Tired after our stroll in the park, we find comfort in the plush seats which adorn the main lobby. Here students with free periods sit comfortably to read their books on nuclear fission. Fully rested, we decide to stroll into our former history room where a class is in session. We find ten students huddled with the teacher in a corner of a small cozy room. As we edge closer, straining to see what absorbs the students so, we find that they are viewing video. The end of our nostalgic tour finds us on the fourth floor, listening confusedly to the roaring of airplane motors and to the ticking of a radio receiver. Curiosity drives us further, and now we know. The old clock tower (clockless in our day) is, in reality, a control tower for the landing field on Lane's roof, and students are busy taking off or arriving in their individual or two-seater planes. We recognize familiar faces that closely resembles our own and hurry to catch a ride home with our grandchildren.

THOUGHTS OF A SENIOR

As I don the clothes of an infant,
And prepare to look my worst,
I look in the mirror with horror!
And with laughter I almost burst.

I think of the years left behind me
The future and what it may hold,
And apply my freckles so deftly
To make me look six years old.

I soon shall receive my diploma
And leave the school I hold dear.
So now as I gather my crayons,
I shed a silent tear.

I tie the bow on my bonnet,
And comb a straggly curl
Cast aside the years behind
For today I'm a little girl!

FAREWELL

Every semester many students receive their diplomas and bid farewell to Franklin K. Lane. Each one will be stepping out into this great metropolis, to assume a responsible role as a member of society. The joy and ecstasy of this occasion make it the happiest moment in everyone's life, and yet, in reality deep down in the hearts of all, there is a state of sadness. It's that feeling you get when you've lost a really true friend. Yes, Franklin K. Lane has indeed been just that: a really true friend. It was given the responsibility of molding us into self-respecting and self-reliant citizens. It has guided us in developing our ability so that we can now work towards our goal. The foundation for our future happiness and success has been started right here at Franklin K. Lane High School. No! It is not just a day of joy and happiness but is accompanied by a tinge of sadness, for we are leaving behind friends whose untiring efforts, understanding, and encouragement have helped us to reach our goal.

A PRICELESS POSSESSION

What is that thing upon your chest that shines like the sun's rays?
You that keep it polished and glittering through all your nights and days.
You wear it on your dresses;
you wear it
on your hair;
Nothing you have ever owned has had lasting care.
Why do you seem to cherish this quite subordinate thing?
Its mere possession makes your heart gay and ready to sing.
No matter how you look at it, it's only a hunk of tin.
Why is it so important? It's just a SENIOR PIN!

A GREAT TASK

Four years ago, the nations of the world were engaged in battle. The enemy lost. We were once again victorious. The world has not settled down to the idea of peace. Countries are still fighting within themselves. The world is very unstable. People are still suffering from want of food, clothing, and shelter. The world still goes on, day after day, month after month, hoping and praying that through an organization of nations, a lasting peace will be made, not only on paper but through each individual country striving to maintain that peace. We are graduating from high school, many of us to go on to higher institutions of learning, while others will face the world at once, for what it is worth. The world is what you make it. Fight for what is right. Support a democratic country where you have the right to express your opinions, the freedom of worship, and the freedom from want. Help those who are trying to survive this past war. It is up to you and me to make a better world, by practicing tolerance, good will, and respect for each other. We graduates are the future men and women of the world. Let us be proud of it and worthy of the name.

ADVICE FROM A SENIOR

Freshie, Freshie, filled with fright, where are you dashing, little mite? Could it be English, grade number one? Or is it to gym to have some fun? Wait! wait! little man, it's not so late; I can explain how to reach grade eight. Rule number one, please take note, is, over your homework you really must dote, for if you don't, you can take it from me I'll bet that you'll never reach up to grade three. Lacking a dental for Mr. Shaw's gym, your chances of passing are all pretty slim. Excelled by none is Mr. Brodell (Alexander) when you take Physics at him you will gander. He teaches electricity and teaches it well, but someday he's bound to get shocked clear to heck. Of the English department there's none so superb as dear Mrs. Kegel; pray tell, have you heard? She hands out a novel every two days and a dozen of ponderous plays. If you think under this strain your nerves will crack you'd better stop here and just turn back. But when you're a senior, as you hope you will be, you'll get a big button for all to see. Then comes your senior term's blessing of blessings Coming to your rescue will be sweet Mrs. Jennings, she'll plan graduation, the prom, and classnight, with her at the helm you'll have things just right. And in closing I wish to say Oh! Oh! there's the bell. Farewell, freshman friend, I've no more to tell.

WHAT LANE HAS DONE FOR ME

When I first entered Lane, little did I know that I should ever worry about missing school and the many educational and interesting activities which Lane offers to its students. After four years in Franklin K. Lane, I have begun to realize how much an education can mean. A good education leads to the road of successful life and good character. My experience in Lane will help me when I enter the business world. I have not only gained much knowledge from my subjects, but also from my experience with students and club activities. These clubs prove most enjoyable, and they help a person gain new friends. Knowing how to gain new friends and keep them is a valuable asset to one entering the business world. This is one of the many advantages I have gained from my four years in Lane, and I am very grateful for this experience. I shall never forget Lane, or my Senior year. My school days have been educational and most interesting. My school days will also be memorable because of the many enjoyable moments I have had at dances and entertainments.

Dorothea Kamp

WHO?

I met her at that gangling adolescent age,
When one is between the childhood of the past
And the adult life of the future.
Tall and erect she greeted me, and welcomed me
To remain at her side.
Years passed, and I found myself enchanted at
The exciting times we shared together.
With her, guiding me, I had grown to maturity.
Together we shared hardships and failures;
Together we shared success and good times.
Never had I shared such companionship!

I came to her as a gangling youth, lost in the Enchanted forest of happy illusions,
Seeking my castle of ideals.
I leave, having found my castle, rich in the Enlightenment she has bestowed upon me.
Oh! how I hate to depart; only in knowing others
Will share this happiness, do I find relief.
She is the very essence of my life-
Franklin K. Lane-my school.

LONGING

As I sit in my room, my lonely room
My mind reaches out for you.
I think of the past, and the fun that we had,
And the days that were so few,
I long for the times that we walked and danced
And the shows we saw together.
And I long for the times that we ran in the snow
And didn't mind the weather.
Can I recapture that wonderous time
Those days when we were gay?
Can I speak of my love with the words in my heart-
The words I could never say?
I try to stay in that wonderful dream
And see those things again,
But as I feared, they've all disappeared,
And nothing is left but the pain

James Wagner

OUT OF THE CONCLUSION

There are so many confusing thing nowadays. I hear people say, "War with Russia", "Communism", "Imperialism", "Atom Bomb", "Germ Bomb". I frown when I hear these things. We agree that war means the annihilation of the human race. We have seen how the Atom bomb can bring horror and death upon an entire city. We know that starvation is a terrible thing, and that millions of people are under its yoke today. The world seems hopeless. Why try to drag such a hopeless "civilization" out of its misery? But then I see a little child laugh, or cry. I hold a kitten in my lap, stroke its soft fur, and I feel the gentle purr of appreciation vibrating through its small body. I see an old woman leaning on the arm of her son. He speaks to her softly and kindly and when she looks up at him, there is a soft glow on her wrinkled face that means that her heart is filled with love. I see all these things, and they mean feeling.

They mean that human beings are living in the world, and that they are feeling. They are thinking, they are working, they are playing. They feel joy, fear, confidence, love, hate. And to make them feel the positive things, the joy, the confidence, the love, is vital. The world is not hopeless. There is hope. There must be. For, as long as there are people in the world, they will feel. And we, and the United Nations, and every individual on Earth must not give up hope, must not talk fanatically, because we are the people, and are not capable of the many achievements that right feeling people everywhere want.

ON DOING HOMEWORK

A Freshman says, "I'll do it or die!"
A Sophomore says, "I shall always try."
A Junior meekly says, "I won't!"
A Senior simply says, "I don't!"

Albert V. Schwartz

FOUR YEARS

Four years of work,
of blood, sweat, and tears,
Four years of suffering,
of never ending fears,
Four years of Gym,
of "lunch-lines" that crawl,
Four years of misery that began every Fall,
Four years of homework,
of marks, and of Regents,
Four years of LANE
where we pledged our allegiance;
Yet now that it's over,
how I wish in vain,
That time could turn back and start over again.

THEN

The long-awaited day has come,
At last I'll strut my stuff,
So keep your distance, Sophomore,
And Freshman, don't be tough!

I've struggled hard and passed The Test,
No sir! They couldn't keep me down;
Now I feel I've earned my rest,
For my hair, a golden crown.

But no! Those teachers drive me on;
Oh can't they see what all this means?
Is the glory from me soon gone?
Is this what four years' struggle gleans?

Selma Hecht

I will remember Lane and the mixed sentiment of graduating.
Wishing, while walking to school in the morning, that the building would be kidnapped or missing due to a midnight tornado.
Inconsiderate teachers, who enjoy piling on homework.
Listening to the girls complaining about their "steadies".
Looking at my graduation pictures, that left me paralyzed for a week.

Reading "Senior Echoes" for the first time, especially my boost????
Eating Lane's terrific (pronounced terrifying) specials after a mad dash to the Cafeteria.
Meaning to do my homework-but postponing it until . . . !
Every Regents I took, the studying before and the aggravation after.
Mediocre Assembly programs I was compelled to witness, when I could have done my homework.
Beating the morning late bell.
English speeches I was forced to deliver.
Reaching for my diploma at commencement.

Albert V. Schwartz - Present Day Memories from '46

THAT'S LIFE

Life is funny. For three long years, I've been looking forward to the day of graduation. For three long years' I've been saying, "Oh, when I graduate I'll be the happiest person alive." Now that the day is at hand, I have a curiously let-down feeling. It's as though I'm being cheated out of something. I don't know exactly what it is, but that feeling persists.

I hear others, lower termers, speak of the next semester's courses, of teachers, of things to come; it's then that I get that feeling. I want to share in the things important to them, the things once important to me. I want to, and yet I can't. It boils down to this-I hate to leave.

I'll miss the teachers. When I think of how I disliked some of them for giving me so much homework, I have to laugh.

I'll miss the "Reporter" office with its bulletin boards of deadline notices; the kids banging on the typewriters, hitting some keys, missing others. I get a lump in my throat whenever I think of the singing of the Star Spangled Banner at assembly programs, or when I think of the red, white, and blue banner in the auditorium, the banner that says 261 in service, 35 dead. Do you know how the American flag looks when you walk up the approach to Lane? Do you recall the massive and impressive pillars at the front of the building? I feel a thrill of pride at the very thought.

Perhaps I'm super-sentimental about these things, but they'll always be a part of me. You see, I really do hate to leave.

Selma Hecht

"PROMISCUOUS PLAGIARISMS"

Thank heaven! The evil has passed,
The fever called school is over at last.
No more because of me shall Phillip Byck bemoan his fate
And curse his luck and cry, "Why can't you conjugate?"
No more need I rack my brain over Byron, Keats, and Shelley,
Or have to trace the destiny of food when once that's reached the belly
No more shall I have to crowd all history's mighty feats
Within the narrow confines of two-by-four gyp-sheets.
For it's good-bye forever to Latin, French and the -ologies-
No more need to raise my mark or to figure out teacher psychologies.

F is for the firm Foundation acquired in Lane
R is for the Rating we strived to attain;
A is for Accuracy far better than speed,
N is for the Novels we were required to read.
K is for the Knowledge we'll never forget,
L is for Languages-an asset we'll never regret;
I is for the Intelligence-a big word we admit,
N is for the Nobility-don't worry, we won't quit!

K is for Keeping those traits we have named.

L is for Loyalty-we won't ever be ashamed-
A is for Assets valuable to own;
N is for the Neatness which we have shown.
E is for Everything which we hope will bring fame and glory forever
To dear FRANKLIN K LANE.

THE ADULT WE

Ninety-eight percent of the facts we've learned will be forgotten soon after graduation. It seems a little strange for four long years and soon forget what has been studied. But our educational purpose was not to make us walking encyclopedias. Rather we have learned to think and act for ourselves. Lane being an American high school contains students from every race, color, and creed. As students in Lane we learned to work and play together and to think in terms of similarities rather than our differences. The battle against tolerance has been fought and won.

A DESCRIPTION

It takes all types of students
To make a Senior Class;
It takes Tom, Dick, and Harry,
Barbara Jones, and Una Crass

It takes Mr. Super-Genius,
And the teachers' protege;
It takes every type of Senior
For that graduation day.

There's that girl who's always tired
With a pale face, lips neglected,
And her hair a rumpled mass.

She had lots of work to "Make up"
And a test to study for;
She had no time to primp and paint
Or comb her hair once more.

The boys are just as bad you know;
They cram, but with dismay
They finally give up trying,
And use John's work next day.

It takes all types of students-
By now you know that's true;
Gosh, I'm talking pretty boldly!
Jeepers, I'm a Senior too!

DEDICATION

God of our fathers, known of old,-
Lord of our far-flung battle line,- Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,-
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,- lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,-
A humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,-lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

LANE MEMORIES

Now that we are leaving Lane, there are many thoughts that enter our minds. There are certain things about high school which will forever remain in our memories.

It will be difficult to forget our Freshman days when we were timid, innocent "Freshies" clad in knickers. Then, too, can the search for rooms, the special passes, and the disdain of the other students be forgotten? We remember the miracle of the one loudspeaker, the funny windows, and the wardrobes with the blackboards on them.

Then there is the lunchroom with all its hustle and bustle. The mass of voracious students keeps up a constant flow of noise. There are the familiar breaking of the bottles followed by the "oohs" and groans when the ball failed to enter the basket, the swell spirit of the crowd, and the general good will everywhere were vital parts of all games.

Of course, the G.O. dances and our swing band, the baseball games, the clubs, and the Lane faculty will remain with us for a long time to come.

We Seniors have other more recent precious memories. The fun at Senior Class Day, the Class Night, the picture taking, and last, but by no means least, the Senior Prom are events we won't want to fade into obscurity.

Exactly what do these things means to us? We always mention the Regents and homework when we're chatting, but deep down inside we hold those memories close to us. After all, having no cherished memories makes an empty, uninteresting old age.

Jerome Rosvosky

Fellow Laneites,

As you all probably know, our country, yes your country, is at war with the enemies of Democracy. You girls, who are now graduating will no doubt go into the business world, or enjoy the life of a college student, or perhaps even find a future in marriage. You fellows, well you know what lies ahead for you. The majority, in a very short time, will go forth wearing a uniform of one of the United States Armed Forces. No matter what branch of service it is, remember that you are going forth to defend the freedoms that our forefathers so gallantly gave their life's blood to earn. To those who are staying behind, you too have an equally important task to accomplish. You must make certain that there will be no repetition of this war. Two world wars in one century are enough. Civilization cannot afford to have another one. Wars do not advance civilization and progress, but hinder them instead. It is up to you staying behind the lines to make a peace worth while to come home to; it is up to your determination and common sense in planning for a better world, that will prove to us that we didn't fight for nothing. So please remember that winning the war is but a comma; winning the peace is the period . . .

Good Luck and may God bless you

IT'S A VERY LONELY NIGHT

I am very lonesome, dear,
Because you are so far from here.
The moon is full, the stars so bright;
But since you went away, it's a lonely night.

I close my eyes and dream of you,
Of castles built for just us two.
But you were taken from my sight;
Since you went away, it's a lonely night.

Each lovely song I hear
Brings back memories so dear,
And then I want you with all my might;
But you went away, and it's a lonely night.

THE FALLEN

Those we have loved the dearest,
The bravest and the best,
Are summoned from the battle
To their eternal rest;
There they endure the silence,
Here we endure the pain
He that bestows the Valor
Valor resumes again.
O, Master of all Being,
Donor of Day and Night,
Of Passion and of Beauty,
Of Sorrow and Delight,
Thou gav'st them the full treasure
Of that heroic blend
The Pride, The Faith, The Courage,
That holdest to the end.
Thou gavest us the Knowledge
Wherein their memories stir
Master of Life, we thank Thee
That they were what they were.

HIGH SCHOOL MEMORIES LIVE ON

H-Heck! I was a Freshie too;
I-I tried to live up to the grey and blue,
G-Giving my all in classes so new,
H-Hearing the Seniors tell me what to do.
S-Sophomore year taught me a great deal;
C-Calling the Freshies names was a great ordeal.
H-How proud I was as years went by,
O-Oh those Seniors who passed just made me sigh.
O-Oh how I wish I were a Senior too;
L-Look, I'd have a great big button of Grey and Blue.

M-Many days had to pass by,
E-Ere a Junior was I;
M-My, but how I've grown up;
O-Oh I should, for now I'm a Senior, don't interrupt.
R-Rather proud am I at last;
I-I've waited three and a half years in the past.
E-Each day holds dear old memories for,
S-School days are happy days in our history.

L-Let us always praise dear old Lane;
I-In our hearts forever it will remain.
V-Very proud we'll always be,
E-Each thought of what we did will be a pleasant memory.

O-Oh Lane to us you bring such cheerful thoughts,
N-Never will we forget the principles we've been taught.

IGNORANCE

Ignorance is a dangerous thing. It hurts people. It creates bitterness, misunderstanding, and malice. It is an intangible which is as potent as a bullet. Ignorance is the cause of prejudice. Scientific facts have proven that all races have equal ability to learn that a certain creed does not make one man superior to another, that color does not affect abilities, ideas, and knowledge. Ignorance causes war. People who blindly despise other countries or other people without just cause are guilty of a crime, not only to their country, but to their fellow-men. They cannot hope to win peace and security when they, by sowing the seeds of ignorance, are also sowing the seeds of war. Ignorance is like the flame. It spreads and hurts all who are touched by it. Once false ideas begin to spread, they cannot be stopped except by a united effort to stop them. If they are not stopped, they engulf everyone, even the ones who kindled them. Ignorance is a dangerous thing. Prejudice, war, and hate are its fruits. We must, if we are to stop its cancerous growth, unite to put down all malignant, unfounded ideas. We must strive for the recognition of truth, and when at last we know it, we must not allow ignorance to mar it.

MY TALE OF WOE

When I was a Freshman,
(I was then so young)
I kept in my head
A civil tongue;
I was new to this world
In many ways,
And worked moronically
Throughout my daze.
In my Sophomore year,
I was alive and strong,
I crammed for exams
And did everything wrong.
I was bold to the teacher
And learned to cut class
And just for the heck of it,
Sold Freshmen passes.

But when a Junior,
I bided my time;
I lived for enjoyment
(This line should rhyme).
I mixed pleasure with work
For I knew all the outs,
And was capable of passing
With ease and no doubt(?).

Now since I've become A Senior great,
I look back on my years
But only too late
I'm weary of fun;
I limp and sag;
From all of that work
Will emerge an old bag.

MURDER IN LANE

Walking down the hall without a pass, I happened to look into an Algebra class. The teacher came out with a ruler and a gun and screaming after me, began to run. He caught me on the stairway and shot me in the neck. And when there was no blood, whined, "Oh heck!" He measured the difference between each hair on my head, proving quite conclusively that x and y were red.

Out of his vest a glass casket he drew and smiling quite kindly said, "This is for you since a Franklin Lane Senior you regret to be, you'll stay here forever he, he, he!"

A TRIBUTE TO LANE

Lane may not possess a football team or a rah-rah football crowd, or constantly exploding factions loudly trying to extract money for pet schemes from over-copious general organizations, to the clash, biff, bang of so-called "school spirit" effervescing, but Lane enjoys a langour and quietitude that is food for the soul, and balm for the spirit. All one has to do is open the magic portal, step within, and one stands transfixed. Peace, tranquility, quietitude, hushed monotones and a dozing Senior at the reception desk greet the view and the warm cockles of the heart. One lone figure undulates gently in the general direction of the elevator. All is quiet, all is still, all is covered in a mantle of silence, six thousand souls peaceful meditation. You can have your football teams, your rah-rah boys, and rah-rah girls, your bickering organizations, your scurrying multitudes, but it's Lane heaven gravestones for me.

SENIOR JOYS AND SORROWS

Everyone envies a Senior with that bright shiny button and that ultra collegiate chapeau, commonly known as the crew cap. They think that the only thing a Senior has to do is to haunt the halls with that superior look on his face. For three and a half years, I had much the same idea, and then I became a Senior! I have to come to the conclusion that all is not joy that shines like a Senior button. I, like the others, forgot the little incidents in a Senior's life such as classes, Regents, and those "weekend" assignments. If it isn't Macbeth, it's a hundred pages or so of that book for history, or it's those essays, about twenty-five of them. These do not come under the heading of homework, but are to be done in our spare time. In this same "spare" time we also have to fit in elimination of candidates for Senior offices, a job painful to both the eliminators and the eliminatees. Then there are the election of Senior officers and the vigorous campaigns that always attend it. Of course, we can't forget "Senior Celebrities". After working for about a month and a half, voting and revoting, Seniors usually find the wrong people won in the final selection. Class Night and the Prom should not be overlooked because they take up the greater part of a Senior's "spare time". There is writing, rehearsing, decorating, etcetera. Of course, Senior life isn't really as bad as I have painted it. Seniors always manage to find a great deal of fun in their assorted tasks, and in later years, when they look back on their Senior Year, all of them will agree that it was the happiest time of their lives.

TO A FRESHIE

How do you do, little Freshie?
I'll bet you wish you were me,
For you're just starting your troubles
And mine are finished, you see
I recall, when I was a Freshman,
I had my ups and downs
With the Seniors' elevator passes
As Freshman they made the rounds.
But don't worry, little Freshman,
You'll be a Senior 'ere long
And be openly sorry you're leaving
But in your heart, too, there'll be a song.

"HUMAN NATURE IN THE CAFETERIA"

In view of circumstances, I would consider it inadvisable to continue our plan of invading Earth. Our first observation, that the people of the earth are quiet and peaceful, is entirely incorrect. I was wandering over the earth when I arrived at a place called "Lane". Following the crowd, I was pushed into a place called the cafeteria. Immediately six scowling gentlemen pounced on me and demanded a thing called a pass. Luckily I escaped when a member of the opposite sex passed by. I heard a ringing sound. In two seconds the cafeteria was emptied. In the distance I heard a deep rumble, resembling the stampede of a herd of glicks.* Right after that, a struggling mass of humanity over ran the cafeteria. This thundering herd broke up into isolated individuals, who spread themselves into chairs. I then picked myself up and looked around me. In everyone's eyes I saw wild, uncontrolled desire. I shuddered and then pulled myself together. I wandered over to a long line of people, who seemed to be waiting for some sort of chemical nourishment. Besides this long line, was a line twice as long of people who once knew a person called a guard, and therefore, they were entitled to special consideration. The sole aim in life of these guards besides holding up the walls, seems to annoy people. On the other hand people were coming out, bent double under the burden of nutrients, that ravenous look replaced by a food. This tiring day was too much for me, and I had to take two gryxzols. Incidentally, will you please send reinforcements? I am in a place called the Dean's Office, and I can't get out.

MY SENIOR PIN

I have a great big Senior Pin. That goes in and out with me
And what can be the use of it? Well, now let us see:

It represents four years of fun. And Regents' worries too;
It means at last we're Seniors. And the pride of Gray and Blue.

Since this will be kept secret, We might as well confess.
The times we cut dull classes, And was it fun? Ah, yes!

Remember rushing down to lunch, for sandwiches and pie?
Tuna was most popular - Will someone tell me why?

We might have done our History. In Study Hall, you know;
But somehow it was much more fun, to talk about the beau.

So if a pal from Jackson, Adams, Jefferson, or Tech.
Ask why we pride our Senior Pins, Don't shrug and say,"Aw, heck!"

But speak right up and tell the world (Or those who care to-hear). And then they'll join in giving us a roaring, rousing cheer!

RECOLLECTIONS OF A LANIAC

Now I can say, I'm a senior at last
In spite of my doubts and fears,
And out of the dark, unreal, dim past
A few incidents are vivid and clear.

There was the time I went to P.T.
When I was supposed to be in the pool;
Boy! You should have seen me-
I thought I'd be expelled from school.
This was my interpretation-

And the time I decided to be honest
And not copy even if I was stumped;
It was an easy History test-
Yeah? I was the only one who flunked.

When I was asked to define reincarnation
Much to my embarrassment and sorrow,
"Gone today, here tomorrow".

And I'll never forget the dumbest thing
When I didn't do my homework one day;
They laughed when I said I was sick or something
How was I to know it was a free day?

Now that it's all over I rejoice,
And someday I'll look back
To say with a note of pride in my voice-
I-was a Laniac.

HIGH SCHOOL

Boy, oh baby- how great it's going to be
To get out of school and be able to sleep to half past three!
No more getting up so early in the morning,
Rushing to school-running and yawning;
No more report cards written in colored ink
That I never brought home because of the reddish tint;
No more teachers to bore me to death
With angles and sines-pueblos and Juliet;
No more assignments to take all the day
When what I want is to go out and play;
No more dashing through the crowded halls
Just to beat the bell's fearful calls;
No more living and longing all the time
For the very same bell that never will chime.

No more-no more will I ever say
That school is awful and a waste of time to stay;
For now-the day that I have to leave-
I can do nothing but think and sadly grieve.
Oh, look at all the fun I had-
School wasn't really bad.

I might have been at home all day,
And might have had to work and never play.

FOR DEMOCRACY

A war for democracy . . .
Again it is said,
And some think it is so;
But those that are dead
Cry, "No".

A war for democracy . . .
They cry, "Give us life"
And "When will it end?"
But there is no end
To strife.

A war for democracy . . .
The youth wonders why
The war makers live, and he must die.
He is told to die for an ideal
But is it for real?

THE FORTIES

The decade of the 40's led the nation from depression and war to peace. The war started on December 7, 1941. It affected every human being alive at the time. It still has a world-wide effect today as well. Throughout the decade there was a close feeling, a feeling of fear and of pride. Many students were sent to the war. Girls lost their boyfriends or just their friends during the war. It hit everyone, everywhere you turned in school people, students, were being drafted. Drill bells went off, it was a very depressing feeling until we won. Then there was a feeling of pride. Notice how styles of clothing are coming back throughout the decade. The hair styles were curly and fluffy on top. Today many girls wear their hair that way, too. If you will notice, every girl who took the pictures had fake pearls on. Today many girls wear that, too. Also in the 1940's there was a "big to do" over a Senior pin. However, we don't go crazy over them today. I wonder why?

THOUGHTS OF A SENIOR

ADVICE TO A SENIOR

The silvery moon shone down on her hair;
It showed her face to be wondrously fair.
Her complexion seemed to be peaches and cream -
In other words, she looked like a dream.

But something was wrong in this lovely scene;
Something was lacking, if you see what I mean.
The girl was there and so was the moon -
But where was the boy in whose arms she could swoon?

A little fly with the gift of speech
Flew round her and began to screech,
"A hint to the wise is usually sufficient:
Your brain power must be very deficient."

"Don't you know what is wrong with you yet?
Please don't be so dull, or I'll really fret.
It's the gown, you know, that you should really fix
For that color and your figure really don't mix."

The girl took the hint of the wise little fly;
Now the picture's just right, and do you know why?
There's a beautiful girl and a very nice moon
And a handsome boy in whose arms she can swoon.

SURPRISE PACKAGE

Somehow, I think of my life as made up of a series of surprise packages which I open one by one with great eagerness and curiosity in order that I may examine the contents within. The first of these surprise packages of any real importance came when I had reached the ripe old age of six, and was ready to enter our honored and respected institutions of learning. I viewed the package before me with awe, but nevertheless with a dreadful anxiety to see what was in it. It was wrapped in mystery, excitement, and the unknown, and tied with promised joy. The day finally arrived when the package was opened; the wrappings fell from it and with time I found myself on thoroughly familiar ground.

It was soon time for a change. The surprise package placed before me then was labeled "High School." The opening of this one yielded many privileges I had not enjoyed before, more independence, and a feeling of being grown up.

Now at the end of four years of examination of this package, I am given another one. It is before me now. It is much bigger than the preceding ones.

On it is written, "Your Future Life, Handle With Care". At graduation, I will be allowed to open the first corner. I just can't wait to see what is in it.

FROM OLD TO NEW

The Franklin K. Lane High School, the humble abode wherein we have dwelled for the past five or six years, has at last won its great battle! By dint of hard work and untiring effort, it has obtained an ultra-modern high school, which in size, beauty and equipment is second to none. Lane has changed from old to new! From a little red school to a glittering mansion! From a maze of labyrinths to spacious bright hallways! The difference between the Prince and the Pauper! Lucky are the ones who will enjoy this miraculous transformation! Now, all of Lane's pent-up capabilities, once bottled up by the cork of limited means and facilities, will burst forth and blaze a trail across the pages of High School annals! We, the graduates of Lane, pass on to you, the future graduates, the torch of good reputation and of good faith. We do this in the hope that you will carry it forward to a fuller and more brilliant era of Franklin K. Lane history. Carry On!

GRADUATION DAY

After four long years of work and preparation, we joyously greet this awaited occasion. The time has come, when we shall embark, upon uncharted seas, mysterious and dark. Storms and squalls, we shall meet galore, before we reach that much cherished shore, but when we do, success is ours. And from Life's cares, we have a few free hours. Then gladly we will return on Memory Lane, to joyously revive high school days again.

A SENIOR'S CANDID PICTURE ALBUM

Cute little Seniors
All in a row.
Think that they will graduate,
Wish that they could know.
Sweet little Seniors
Innocent as can be,
Little do they know of life
That's not from nine to three.
Clever little Seniors
Tops in French and Math,
Some will win just all the medals
To the others wrath.
Big, big Seniors
Look so out of place,
Seven years, eight years
Same familiar face.
Big, big Seniors
Just can't get enough;
By the time they graduate
They should know their stuff.
Big and little Seniors
Trusting to their fate,
Just one thing is on their minds
Oh! to graduate!

FRANKIE SENIOR'S RIDE

As Seniors we arrived one day in September,
And the sight which we saw we'll always remember.
There stood our new building with campus and all,
But between it and the cemetery was only a wall.
Now we'll study like Trojans our Regents to pass,
So from this school to graduate we'll be the first class.

TO THOSE I LEAVE BEHIND

To those I leave behind me
There are words I cannot say;
The things I fain would utter
Must be saved for another day.
At present I cannot tell them
The feeling in my heart;
My tears would only drown my eyes
If I should try to start.
For the few years I've known them
They've been such pals to me;
Only now do I realize
Truer friends could never be.
Too late I wish to thank them
For the help, the smiles, the fun;
At last I can see the worth
Of ev'ry friend I've won.
Each will go a separate way
To page life for its joy;
I, too, will go along the road
Rememb'ring ev'ry girl and boy.
Though high school days are over,
I hope each remains friend;
Though my childhood dreams are gone,
My friendships need not end.

Amelia Dorsey

SHOULD THEY BE FORGOT?

The time is near to say farewell:
To face a world so cruel, so bare, that until now
Hath been so kind. Each day hath been a stepping stone.
Will we want the fame at the ending of the road?
Though fame is rare, though fame is power it must be got.
The Good, the Honor, and the Friendship
Should they be forgot?

Renato Della Rocca

MEMOIRES

F is for the friendships
Made in Franklin K. Lane
From our friendly follies
We've become mundane.
R is for the Regents,
The test of our brilliancy (?):
If only we had a Robot
To end such misery!
A is for the arrogant way
The Seniors treat the Frosh,
But just wait till they're in college
They'll get it from the Sophs.
N is for the nonsense
That has just been written here,
'Tis an attempt of a would-be poet
(Oh, please don't sneer!)
K is for the knowledge
We have thus far acquired;
Here's hoping its results
Will make us feel inspired.
L is for all the languages
Which have caused us naught but pain,
To keep them in the numbskulls
Has been just a "Castle in Spain".
I is for the instructors
Who taught us what we know;
For their endless patience
Our blessings upon them we bestow.
N is for the noise
Synonomous with Lane;
Still, in spite of this,
Our honors we sustain
K is for the "Knocks"
From which all the Seniors shrink;
How we wish they weren't
Written in indelible ink!
L is for Mr. La Grasse
The biology teacher;
When one gets out of his class.
He certainly is meeker.
A is for Mr. Artale,
Who tries to teach us Math,
The one "Pet peeve" that's sure
To cross most every student's path.
N is for Mr. Neugroschl,
That very good sport,
Whom we'll remember for more
Than the history he taught.
E is for Mr.Engel
Who helped us right along,
Here's hoping that his reward
Will be a healthy life that's long.

Sara used to be a dancer. She used to belong to the Social Club. And she used to follow the basketball team around.

Ruth used to write for the Lane Mirror, the school magazine. And she belonged to the French Club. Ruth said, "We were so close, that after all the years, once we start talking, we see the young people come sneaking through."

FAREWELL

Though our stay was short here,
Our love will never wane;
Always we'll remember
Our own dear Franklin Lane.

Farewell to our teachers
And to our classmates
But when we meet again
Our joy will still be true.

Leaving here just fills us
With happiness and tears;
But onward we must go
To strive for future years.

Thanks to school and teachers
Our work was not in vain;
C'mon, let's give a cheer
For dear old Franklin Lane.
